The Blitz Team's Wise Words

Antonia Shuttleworth
Blitz Editor

Name something you do when you're alone that you wouldn't do in front of others.
I have to shame really but I've been told that I really shouldn't eat in front of others; apparently the speed and volume can be alarming for observers. Although at the same time, why are they watching me eat? Weirdos.

What are your plans for the break?
Break into the Blitz office and redecorate.

Katy Kennett
Blitz Designer

How do most people react when you tell them you don't have exams? [COFA kids don't have exams.]
They've been known to drop the odd c-bomb and other vulgar profanities.

If you could have grown up anywhere else in the world, where would it be?
Up in the mountains in Switzerland... That place is incredible.

Jacob Burkett
Blitz Reporter

What's your favourite thing to dress up as?
After my zlist, I'd have to say a Jedi.

Name 3 things you associate with exams:
Confidence, caution, depression.

What is the best faculty at UNSW and why?
The best faculty is the Arts Faculty, because they accept everyone, no matter what race or ATAR.

Henry Cornwell
Blitz Reporter

Where you'll be spending the holidays:
Europe! Still not sure where. Probably Holland, England, Germany and maybe even some Balkan states. Thanks for the tips Evrosoc!

Summarise semester 1 in 10 words or less:
Where did all the time go?

Who is your celebrity crush?
Charlie Sheen.

07 A Quickie With... S Club

Blitz reached for the stars and caught up with S Club's Jo and Bradley on their way to bringing it all back to the Roundhouse this Friday June 1.

THE 90S POP SENSATION GET READY TO BRING IT ALL BACK TO THE ROUNDHOUSE

Despite band break-ups and the odd solo career, the Brit-pop favourite have reunited to prove that there still ain't no party like an S Club party – and in particular, notorious uni parties.

It might just be the biggest pop band revival in recent years, with founding members Bradley McIntosh, Jo O'Meara and Paul Cornwell all returning to perform in what will be their first ever live Australian gig this Friday at the Roundhouse. They may have mixed up their line up, but their famous hits that had you dancing in your lounge room as a 13-year-old remain as catchy as ever.

Leading lady Jo told BIZ how excited she is about the UNSW gig: "University shows are always the craziest and most fun", while frontman Bradley believes that college shows are always more special. "Students are often telling us how a gig brings back a whole lot of their memories as a kid, so the performance tends to always double as a trip down memory lane".

The S Club obsession exploded onto the scene in '99 with the single 'Bring It All Back Now' and a hit TV series Miami 7. Jo revealed how nothing could have prepared her for what followed: "I don't think any of us could have seen the success coming. I remember the show aired and the next day I went to a mall and had to get a police escort out!"

Bradley knows how she felt: "When I went to the mall, they had to shut the whole off it down because it got too crowded – once I was out, they decided it was safe to open it again".

Bradley admits the band's whirlwind success as a 'blur' particularly memories of time spent in Sydney. "We were here for a TV performance and I think some promo work. It's tough to reminisce, everything is a blur looking back at it now. I was recently looking at my passport and couldn't believe half of the places that I'd been to".

The S Club franchise was huge and the pair proudly state that they have no regrets from their time in the limelight. "I can safely say that I wouldn't change anything... except maybe the times when we were constantly touring (so) we occasionally chose to stay at our hotels instead of partying – maybe I'd change those decisions!" Jo admits.

With new kids on the block being fame-monster One Direction, we felt it was necessary to ask who would win a showdown between the two British pop groups. "There would be no contest! We're older, more experienced – and have a girl!" Bradley stated. "I wouldn't be afraid to wrestle them either", Jo stated.

This pair revealed they have surprises in store for their upcoming Roundhouse performance on June 1 (the last day of Semester 1) – but we couldn't get them to reveal what these were, no matter how much we pestered them, so make sure you grab a ticket from premier.ticketek.com.au or have a go at our comp below to go and find out for yourself.

THE BREAK-UP BREAKDOWN:

1999	2002	2003	2003-2008	2008	2012
Jo Bradley, Hannah, Paul, Jo, Tim and Rachel form S Club 7 and release Bring It All Back Now and Miami 7 .	Paul leaves and S Club 7 become S Club.	During a live onstage performance, S Club call it quits.	In the interim, Paul and Jo each had successful solo careers and joined on the reality TV Handbags: Hannah went on to star on Primeval and Time . Will Trites was planning to release an album for a few years now, but so far nothing's all that.	Jo, Bradley and Paul launch an S Club 3 reunion tour.	S Club and Big Broz bring the party to our very own Roundhouse.

Of the boys, Jo's had a string of appearances on UK TV shows and theatre productions, and Bradley and Paul took a DJ course together.

FROM BOGANS TO GOTHs: BRIDGING THE SOCIAL DIVIDE

Love does not discriminate based on dress code, devotion to political doctrines or a degree (apparently).

• Henry Cornwell + The Blitz Team

At last, the end of semester's upon us. However, emotions are running high, as this week's the last chance at tutes to gaze wistfully into the eyes of that babe across the room. If you're lucky enough to pick up that cutie from class at the End of Session Roundhouse Backyard party, how can you keep them occupied this winter break?

At the EOS you'll both be decked out in full bogan attire, but who's to say that's really who he or she is on the inside? Perhaps they're not that into flannos, BBQs and backyard cricket, and underneath that layer of fake tan there's a pale emo girl or guy looking for someone to spend the winter break with. While the most obvious answer to the challenges presented by frosty weather plus your raging attraction may be bed, you also have to eat, drink and maintain a social connection.

Without inhibitions or other fears of consequence or of what people might think, no idea is too
crazy for a bogan.

The way to do this, dear reader, is to identify subcultures and box them into it. They'll try to protest ("No! I'm an individual!"). Just because I wear skinny jeans/fake tan doesn't mean I'm a hipster/bogan", but don't listen, people go for sub-culturally identifiable habits like bears to honey, so capitalise on this and they'll love you forever.

HIPSTERS

The good thing about hipsters is that they're open minded. So long as it isn't mainstream, they'll be happy to engage with you on just about anything. Even if it is mainstream, tell them you're being ironic and they'll love it. Keep them satisfied with a steady flow of art, local bands, health drinks and alcohol over the break - easy. Sit them with your sister's HSC art scribbles and they'll be stoked on "the deeper meaning". Take them to your mate's band and they'll be thrilled that nobody else has heard of them. Most importantly, never pull them up on their double standards or pretentiousness.

NERDS

Don't let this stereotype put you off - nerds are the sweetest (and sometimes most adventurous) kids out there. They'll also be super-stoked that a catch like you would even notice them - just make sure you give them time to do their own thing every once in a while. Remember also that life's not limited to material things: 50% of life in the uni break is Second Life and you need to respect that. Be ready to accept that a relationship in an alternative dimension isn't the same as two-timing.

COLLEGE KIDS

I don't wanna generalise and they're fine, but come Semester 2 they'll be back to 24-hour pyjamas and incestuous college parties. But hey, at least you have the winter. You can head back to their freezing country town and help them milk the cows, shear the sheep and whatever else it is that you do on a farm.

GOTHs/EMOS

We all know that goths and emos are the same thing, and yet one of the funniest things in life is to call a goth an emo, or an emo a goth. But I digress. If you actually score that skinny, black-haired pasty babe or guy (I know, it sounds unlikely but they exist, I've seen them), how will you spend your break? The good thing about winter is they're less likely to be afraid of going out and getting a tan, so they'll be more open than usual to activities. Like hipsters, they prefer things that are arty so stick to galleries and weird bars.

BOGANS

There'll be no shortage of bogans at the Roundhouse Backyard Party, so don't be surprised if you get up close and personal with one of them. But don't let the odour, teeth, tracksuit pants or political incorrectness put you off; bogans have heaps of fun and are the BBQ masters. Without inhibitions or other fears of consequence or of what people might think, no idea is too crazy for a bogan. Pogo sticks on trampolines? Sure. Paprika-snorting competitions? Why not. For a classy night, try Star City. The only downside will be either moving to the mines with them in the future, or ending the relationship when they move to the mines, so enjoy it will you can.

With all of that in mind, and despite projected, subjective social divisions, who doesn't enjoy catching up with mates in the backyard and talking shit? No matter which persuasion you prescribe to, we look forward to seeing you in your full bogan best at the EOS Backyard party and good luck with your holiday love affair. See you after the break, heartbreaker.

BETTER THAN STUDYING: WHAT'S ON UNSW

END OF SESSION PARTY

Backyard BBQ Bonanza

• Antonia Shuttleworth

Celebrate the winter break with a blistering backyard party at The Roundhouse

Everyone's got that friend who hogs the tongs at a barbie (and for good reason, they've got mad skills) or that friend who always brings extra drinks, knowing that you're too lazy to organise your own. This Thursday night, the Roundhouse is that friend, so come early and come keen for a great night.

Your best mate the Roundhouse is transforming into a massive indoor backyard this Thursday 31 May for the biggest Backyard Party since that snot nosed kid with the yellow sunglasses that nobody remembers the name of invited everyone over at the end of primary school.

Celebrate being a mad nerd and surviving Semester 1 by enjoying bogan fashion, street cricket, ludicrously skilled live bands and some dangerously talented DJs. You may at times mistake the Roundhouse for your mate's place, as it'll be chock-a-block with backyard props like hills hoists, dodgy couches and garden fences.

For those hitting the trenches for exams the memories you make this night will keep you warm through your winter studies, and for anyone without exams you have no excuse not to come and tear it up, bogan style, all night long.

WHEN: Thursday May 31st from 5pm
WHERE: Roundhouse
PRICE: Free before 8pm / after 8pm $5 Arc / $10 UNSW / $15 GA
VERDICT: Every bogan and his dog will be at the End of Session Party.

S CLUB AND BIG BROVAS

Reach for the stars at The Roundhouse

Despite your tough, poor student exterior, we know that you're still a bubbly 13-year-old girl on the inside - that goes for you too boys.

In 1999 our lives changed forever when S Club stormed the pop scene and stole our breath with their badass dance routines, and our hearts - don't deny it, everyone wanted a piece of Bradley and Rachel for was it Hannah?!. Now in 2012 our very own Roundhouse is hosting the reunion tour that'll have you "waving your hands in the air like you just don't care" as S Club bring it all back now.

Jo, Bradley and Paul have brought a few of their friends from Big Brovas along to show us that there still "ain't no party like an S Club party". Let's pay 'em back by teaching them that there ain't no party like a UNSW party.

WHEN: Friday June 1st 8pm
WHERE: The Roundhouse
PRICE: $61.60+BF from ticketek.

THE BLITZ STUDY GUIDE

Library Loving

Sometimes the key to productive study isn't about technique or time management, it's about finding a space where you won't be distracted, cold or bored.

STATE LIBRARY

16 Macquarie Street, Sydney
Opening hours: Monday to Thursday: 9am-8pm / Friday: 9am-5pm / Weekends: 10am-5pm

Pros

- Fantastic location for post-study shopping, movies, opera and study.
- It's a super productive library because you can't borrow anything, so you have to do all of your work there.
- People are really anal about being quiet there, so again, you will actually do work.

Cons

- There will be a thousand Year 12 students there freaking out.
- The security can seem a bit intense.
- Requesting books can be annoying.

RED

1d Home
Opening hours: 24/7

Pros

- You're at home!
- You don't have to get dressed - for those people who do normally dress when they leave the house for uni at least.
- Free food, especially if you live at home with your family.

Cons

- There is a 70% chance you will never do any work and instead spend all your time eating, streaming and sleeping - maybe even all at the same time.

UNSW LIBRARY

1d Upper Campus
Opening hours: Monday to Friday 7am-12am / Weekends 9am-7pm

Pros

- It was recently redecorated in orange tones for productivity and happiness.
- There are all kinds of variations of tables, rooms, bean bags and couches to grab.
- It's where everyone goes, so all of your friends'll be there (also possibly a con).

Cons

- The lifts are super slow.
- You might get vertigo from studying too long on L13.
- Printer and computer lines are majorly annoying.

Don't hesitate to take pics of people sleeping or freaking out in the library you choose to frequent, and let us know which one works best for you by uploading it to our FB page. Good luck for exams muffins!

LAW LIBRARY

1d Lower Campus
Opening hours: Monday to Friday 7am-12am / Weekends 9am-7pm

Pros

- You look really cool and smart and the bathrooms are really nice.
- Proximity to the Anzac Pde bus stops.
- It's right next to the Roundhouse for before/ during/after study drinks.

Cons

- The booths and most tables are all taken by 7:30am.
- There is a uniform here: you must accessorise any outfit with a MacBook Pro or you won't be allowed in.
- You have to pretend you're a Law student - ie about "contracts" and "moots".

WOOLLAHURA LIBRARY

1d 50d New South Head Point, Double Bay
Opening hours: Monday to Friday 9:30am-8pm / Weekends 10am-4pm

Pros

- It's a beautiful historic house with a gorgeous garden and view of Sydney Harbour.
- The Library's right next to Redleaf pool.
- Library membership is free.

Cons

- Are you crazy, it's way too cold to swim in the ocean.
- There's an amazingly distracting DVD collection.
- There are only 3 buses that go there, in contrast to the thousands of buses that head to UNSW.

SYDNEY UNI LIBRARY

1d Sydney Uni
Opening hours: Monday - Friday 8am-7pm / Saturday 10am-5pm

Pros

- There's a museum there!
- Close to the city for study breaks.
- Admit it, you probs have a lot of friends there.

Cons

- Enemy territory.
- You have to dress up to study.
- It probably has exactly the same books as we have here, but with twice the hipster talent.

WINTER SHOPPING

Rozelle Markets

Every Saturday and Sunday, 9am-4pm
16 Darling St Balmain, off Victoria Rd
COST: Always look out for the $1 baskets

Find yourself a bargain and learn how to barter well before you fly off to South East Asia for the break. You'll find vintage clothes, rare books and CD's, as well as an array of boat shoes for the more hipster-like shoppers.

WINTER BEACHING

Beach Rd Hotel

Every Friday night after 7pm
16 Beach Road, Bondi

A great night out doesn't always mean heading to the city when there isn't a uni party on at the Roundhouse. UNSW has claimed Bondi as its own and with the Beach Road Hotel always containing a crowd of foreigners, exchange students as well as local experts you should definitely be getting involved. Friday nights at the Beach Road are known for their rowdiness and happiest of happy hours, so don't miss out.

WINTER VOLUNTEERING

Dog walking

Various times
16 RSPCA, Ryde

All your friends gone out of town and feeling like a nige? Head on down to the RSPCA and make a tonne of new friends - both human and animal. Volunteering as a dog walker is a great way to keep the winter weight off, do your good deed for the year and make some great new connections - plus it'll look great on your CV. We recommend getting rabies injections first though. Sign up at rspcasw.org.au.

WINTER BEATS

Nine Sons of Dan

Sunday 15th July, 6:30pm
1d Metro Theatre
COST: $15 in advance / $20 on the door.

The intimate set up of The Metro Theatre always makes for a crazy night and Gold Coast young guns, Nine Sons of Dan, will be sure to keep that in mind. It'll be hard to get excited for anything following catching S Club at the Roundhouse, but you can celebrate the holidays by getting crazy with the Australia's newest young pop rock group.

5 WORST WAYS TO PREPARE FOR YOUR EXAMS

The All Nighter. The worst way to fail an exam would be to fall asleep during it, before being asked to leave. A shameful walk across the front of the lecture theatre with onlookers shaking their heads in disapproval would follow. Don't be that person; prepare yourself by studying at least two days before.

Cry and cover in the corner. It can't be that bad! There are lecture slides online and your smartest friend is on call willing to give advice. Keep in mind that you may still have enough credits that will get you a pass in the course no matter how bad you flunk out in the exam. Unless passing the exam is compulsory - or, uh, Mistake confidence with arrogance. "I don't need to study, I've been acing everything this year", are famous last words my friend. You'll go from studying Spacecraft Engineering to working in the washroom at Kensington Café with that attitude. Not that there's anything wrong with Kensington Café; I just mean - you know what I mean...

Overthink everything and mix up the dates. So you've been preparing for weeks and you know your notes like the back of your hand, but when you walk into your Theatre exam your first question reads "Solve $-(7n+3)-(8(1-8n))$ ". Death. Ensure that, checking where and when your test takes place is the first and last thing you do.

Rely on your cheating abilities. You have notes on the inner side of your pencil case, between the webs of your fingers and on the back of your tie... asand now you have your lecturer dragging you out of the exam by your hair. Well that's exaggerating, but to be honest I'd take hair pulling over being kicked out of uni. Stay smart kids, you don't want to end up at Kensington Café... Why do I hate that place so much?

Forgot your calculator coming in for an exam? Never fear, you can borrow a UNSW approved calculator for free from Arc Reception - all you need is a student ID and a $10 deposit.

NEED TO GET RID OF STUFF?

It's easy to book a FREE Council clean-up collection with Randwick City Council

1. Call 1300 722 54, or book online, by scanning the code to the right, with a QR enabled phone or, by visiting www.randwick.nsw.gov.au/bookmycleanup to book your free clean-up collection. You can book up to two on-call clean-up collections each year.

- You will receive your booking confirmation in the mail.
- Place up to 1m³ of items neatly on the nature strip the night before your collection date.
- Council will collect your material free of charge.

This service is for residents of Randwick City Council only. Residents may also place items out for collection for free on the two scheduled clean-up collection dates. Unauthorised placement of material is illegal dumping - you can be fined $750.

For more information, phone Council's Call Centre on 1300 722 542 or go to www.randwick.nsw.gov.au

COLLEGE CONFIDENTIAL HOLIDAY HAIKU

Twas the night after exams, when all through the college
Not a creature was stirring, not even a cleaning trolley.
The students were hung-over in their beds without care,
In hopes that their headaches would soon disappear.

Last night's pick-ups were soon kicked out of the beds,
As vague recollections of '10am check out' danced in their heads.
Last night's clothes were donned, and suitcases closed,
As phone calls from parents heralded their approach.

"Bye Seppoi! Bye Dave! Groh!! Bye Beefer's and Zeefers!
Bye Big Dog! Bye Moll-cat! Bye Seedy McReidy!
To the train! To the airport! To a 10 hour drive home!
Facebook me daily so I don't feel alone!"

The students slumbered in trains, planes and cars,
Dreaming of a month spent with me and pa.
Home cooked meals were what was most missed,
And their livers would enjoy a few days of not getting pissed.

But the thrill of a month spent in their hometowns soon dissipated,
When they realised all of their friends had married and procreated.
The local pub shuts at 10, and there's not a nightclub in sight.
The only entertainment is watching Gossip Girl re-runs all night.

Still, after exams they could all use a rest,
And what better place to do it than in the Central West?
That night, the Facebook statuses all read the same:
"Happy holidays to all! Next semester, we'll do it all again!"

Does this sound like your college experience? Come along to the IRC Debating competition Monday 28 8.30pm at The Roundhouse to hear your college reps fight it out.

Au Revoir Arc Chair 2011/12

For the last year we've loved having Natalie Karam, Arc Chair, at our Table – our Table of Contents that is. Nat's shared some final words of wisdom with us before she sits her last UNSW exams and jumps on a plane to grown-up-land.

How has uni compared to what you expected?
It's been a massive journey – I never thought that I'd meet so many people and get involved with uni life as much as I have.
How would you recommend UNSW to a future student?
We have the best degrees and the best student experience (read: bars and clubs/societies) of any Australian uni.
Which Disney character are you?
Peter Pan – I don't want to grow up and leave Neverland/UNSW.
Where will life take you next?
I'm flying out to New York City for summer school and then exploring Latin America. After that, I'm going on exchange at the University of Hong Kong for a year and then moving to London indefinitely.
More broadly speaking, I'd love to eventually work in law and economic development with developing countries.

What will they write in your obituary?
Her motto was work hard, play hard. It probably killed her in the end, but she wouldn't have wanted to live her life in any other way. That shit cray.
In your next life what would you come back as?
In the words of Bart Simpson, "A butterfly, because nobody suspects the butterfly."

Be that butterfly Nat.

Just Like In The Movies

SCREW EXAMS – PREPARE FOR POPCORN AND PREMIERES,
THE SYDNEY FILM FESTIVAL IS COMING TO A CINEMA NEAR YOU.

When: 6-17 June
Where: Various locations
– check for individual
films at sff.org.au
Cost: $15 for a single film

First off, let's face the cold, hard truth: this year's Sydney Film Festival line-up is probably [guilp] not as good as last year's. But it's still the closest Aussie film-goers get to Cannes or Sundance. Attending the Sydney Film Festival ups your movie hipster levels considerably; choose wisely and you can see films still being talked about months later.

What's that you say? The festival is in exam time? Not to worry – Blitz has gone through and picked out the highlights, so you can balance your study with explosions of cinematic goodness. You're welcome! See you in the aisles.

Amour

Michael Haneke (Hidden, The White Ribbon) wins prizes for every movie he does, and this won't be released in cinemas for at least another half year, so I suggest you drop everything and go see it while you have the chance.

Liberal Arts

If you're a diehard fan of How I Met Your Mother, this movie not only stars but was directed and written by Ted (Josh Radnor) – is he as funny in the movies as he is on TV?

Goodbye

One of three Iranian films at the festival this year, and given how well A Separation did last year (hint: it won an Oscar), you might want to add it to your 'to-see' list, if you catch my drift. Director Mohammad Rasoulof was imprisoned by the Iranian authorities in 2010, and Goodbye mirrors his own story about a female lawyer whose license is revoked by the government.

Alps

I don't know if you've seen much Greek cinema. It's freaky stuff, by which I mean in a disturbing and emotional way, not like horror movie freaky. Alps is the new film by Yorgos Lanthimos, whose Dogtooth was one of the bleakest and strangest, but weirdly incredible, movies I've ever seen. Get your kicks from confronting cinema? This is for you.

Brave

Pixar's latest movie is having its Australian premiere at the festival. It's Pixar, so that makes it automatically worth seeing, even if the trailer makes it look suspiciously like How to Train Your Dragon – you know, cheerful medieval warriors with Scottish accents. Oh, and Billy Connolly will be there – Scottish joke, anyone?

Dr. Sarmast's Music School

The festival is really pushing documentaries this year, but for my money this is the pick of the bunch, the story of a music teacher who returns to Afghanistan to teach at a music school closed down by the Taliban.

On the Road

Finally, someone is making a movie of On the Road! Now, whenever your pretentious friend/s bring up the classic 50s novel, you can nod, and say 'Mhmm', and follow the conversation.

Moonrise Kingdom

Wes Anderson returns with his latest, dose of quirk, a comedy set in 1965 and starring Bruce Willis and Edward Norton.

Mabo

Any law students reading? Watching this movie saves you having to read the case in Public And Constitutional Law. And Property.... Sorry, couldn't resist.

Ignore these suggestions at your own peril. For more info, and the full list of films, head to sff.org.au. Also make sure you routinely check the Blitz FB and tumblr pages over the break to see our reviews of the films we catch.

• BLOG	6/10		THINGS BOGANS LIKE http://thingsboganslike.com/ Having traded their hits for book deals and cash, the writers of Things Bogans Like have just about called it quits on their blog. With more than a month between each post and a page called "The Full List", it seems they're running out of ideas. The latest post hides solid witty humour under a veil of faux-intellectual grammatical incomprehensibility (ironically [though I fear unintentionally] offset by misspellings like "manœuvre". It's also too long to really keep you interested. The second last post was great, but over six months old. With so much on their plates (as they apologise for not having posted for so long), should we blame them? Yes, in that much time, we've written four major essays and imbued over 80 litres of alcohol, per student. If they're not going to maintain a high standard, they should stop. Having said that, the webs would be a sadder place without them, so I'd prefer it if they'd just shape up. If you really want to know what bogans like, find out for yourself. Boogie down to ACDC, Cold Chisel and cheap bourbon and coke while you're at it. Only at The Roundhouse, this Thursday night.	• Henry Cornwell
• EXHIBITION	8/10		MADAME TUSSAUDS @ Darling Harbour The Sydney Madam Tussauds Wax Museum is cheery fun at its best. With worldwide museums, Darling Harbour's exhibition brings a local touch of celebrity where Delta, Kylie, Nicole, and even Alf all get a look-in. The well thought-out and interactive set up means that you can live out your dreams of surfing with Beachley, dancing with MJ or chatting with Oprah. At times you'll feel like a flaming idiot, so go with friends who won't judge you when you don a matching Marilyn dress to pose with her atop of an active air vent. Contrary to common belief, touching is allowed. Like a night out in the Cross, personal space is non-existent and groping is expected. This intimacy lets you have a good squiz at the remarkable 200 measurement detail of the models, showing your face right into those of Brad and Leo. It's a great place to muck around, and you can avoid queues and other gawkers by visiting midweek. With $25 concession prices (online) and possible up-coming midweek specials, this is an all-out celebrity dress-up dream.	• Vanessa France
• PLAY	10/10		STRANGE INTERLUDE @ Belvoir Street Theatre When I heard there'd be sexual tension and nudity in this 21st century revamp of Eugene O'Neill's 1920s classic, I thought, "Great, more Belvoir bullshit." Coupled with the fact that watching O'Neill's other "masterwork", Long Day's Journey into Night, was the most boring set of hours of my life, I was ready for a dreary night. By the end of Mitchell Butel's opening monologue I was won over, but I was sure that at least some of the other actors would be bad, and that the story would turn boring soon enough. I was wrong - the entire cast performed exceptionally. The acting, coupled with director and playwright Simon Stone's honest appropriation of the script for a modern audience ensured that those who were watching could relate to every character - even as they betrayed one another. This performance sets the standard for Sydney's theatre. Never again should we settle for anything less than thought-provoking, entrancing entertainment. No more accepting a performance as "good enough for a play". Even if you're not a fan of the theatre, you have to see this.	• Henry Cornwell
• TV SERIES	8/10		MISFITS SEASON THREE ABC 2 Our favourite chavs and thugs with superpowers are back in community service and this season there's romance, power swapping, gender swapping and, wait for it, Nazis - what more can you ask for. For those coming to Misfits late, Season Three is a bit of a do-over, with one of the core characters from the previous two seasons, Nathan, taking a hike. In his place we're gifted Rudy, a simiany asinine, smart-mouthed dickhead who thinks he's God's gift to women. It's amazing. Season Three lags a bit in the middle, but comes together for a strong and shocking conclusion that has me excited for Season Four. The recent announcement that Kelly, the chav with a heart of gold has been booted off after an incident with a London cabbie shouldn't have anyone concerned. Season Three proved that the concept of the show is stronger than its characters. WIN 1000z For your chance to score a copy of Misfits Season Three, email info@misfitsaustralia.com with "MISS YOU NATHAN" as the subject and tell us what your superpower would be.	• Jenny Harvan
• ALBUM	9.5/10		BARCHORD Bahamas This is the soundtrack of the summer that we missed out on. Barchord is a beautifully packaged album whose title betrays its simplicity but understates its reach. These chilled out guitars, bass, drums and vocals come together like the warm, sleepy end of a day at the beach. There are no studio effects, which is a relief for this style of music. Real instruments are stripped back to the point where you can hear fingers grazing up and down guitar strings. The slow start of 'Lost in the Light', building up to the wet, surfer reverb of 'Okay, Alright, I'm Alive' makes it the perfect album for starting a day or ending a night. With a guest appearance by Faist on 'Snowglow', you couldn't ask for more. And when your girlfriend goes on holidays without you, 'Overjoyed' is the perfect song to cry yourself to sleep to.	• Henry Cornwell
