"Never spend your money before you have earned it."

Guess whose mouth that pearl of wisdom originated from? While it sounds like something yo' momma would say, this entirely logical but incredibly hard to follow piece of advice is actually from Founding Father Thomas Jefferson. Now I don't know how much American Presidents were getting paid back in the 18th Century, but it probs wasn't that much.

At Blitz HQ we're living the dream: a paid internship with great peeps and heaps of perks. But what about balancing the cost of transport, textbooks and tequila shots?

In the spirit of tax season, this week we're all about getting back to basics and living blissfully on a budget. These pages have got you covered for everything from fashion to frostbite to feng shui, so read on and take notes - there'll be a quiz.

Student life isn't cheap these days and it's hilarious to think of some of the things that we do to make ends meet.

Sometimes these things make us feel a little bit proud, like finding the most comfortable couch ever on your street corner - then getting your housemates to help you bring it home that night, ninja-style. Of course, there are also things that we don't brag about but are necessary at times - like substituting tissues with toilet paper, we've all been there...

Arc can also help out: in lots of ways, one awesome hidden secret is the SRC's Welfare Room on Level 1 of the Blockhouse. It's full of free cereal, has a microwave, and there's space to relax if you're getting too real. Also, if you're around on Wednesday mornings you can catch up on the most important meal of the day with free breakfast outside the Library from 9-10am.

WHAT WOULD YOU CHANGE ABOUT UNSW?
I'd organise a shuttle bus to run from lower campus to upper campus. Too many times I get to The White House and just give up
- Alexis Phillips.

HIT

No Doubt going on tour! Don't speak, I know just what you're saying, it actually hurts to be this excited.

When your mum wants to pay you back for your textbooks saying, "you try so hard at uni, let me do this for you". Boomtown.

Waking up in time to get Macca's breakfast before class. Nom nom nom.

SHIT

Whoever moved the Anzac Parade bus stop back to its horrible spot after the traffic light needs to burn in the fires of Mordor.

Splendour hangover; how can we be expected to go to class after that madness? Everything hurts everywhere.

That no one told us earlier there's Foxtel in the Postgrad Lounge - how could you keep this from us?

a quickie with LADYHAWKE

THE NZ SONGBIRD REFLECTS ON HER UNI EXPERIENCES AND TAKING FLIGHT AFTER GRADUATION
• Henry Cornwell

Life's no breeze for this Kiwi songbird; between touring the UK, releasing her sophomore album Anxiety and collaborations with The Horrors, The Klaxons and Empire of the Sun's Nick Littlemore, she's barely been back to the nest in years. But would she have it any other way? Hell no! Blitz caught up with an enthusiastic Ladyhawke just before she set off for Splendour last weekend, where she featured in a packed lineup with young Antipodean musical heroes.

Now honestly, do you reckon going to uni aided your career in any way? [Before her career took flight, Ladyhawke completed a Bachelor of Design, majoring in Photography at the School of Design in Wellington.] I had a great time at uni, while learning about things that have remained relevant to my career. I really like to have a handle on all of the creative aspects of my music, right down to the artwork.

And looking back on it, what would you say was the most important part of going to uni?

The stuff that you do at university shapes you as a person and it stays with you for the rest of your life. I made some really crucial friends at uni and started a band that changed me.

With that philosophy in mind, where would you be if your career hadn't taken off the way it has? [As well as a receiving heaps of nominations, Ladyhawke won Breakthrough Artist in both album and single categories at the 2009 ARIA Music Awards.]

Even on my first European tour, when I was only playing to crowds of 10-15 people, I was still so happy just to be there, so I'd still be playing in bands and writing music and I'd still be Ladyhawke. Whatever happened, I always wanted to be able to make music.

So what would you say to students looking to break into a musical career?

Don't ever pretend to be something that you're not; honesty comes through in your music and people can tell if you're not enjoying what you're doing.

At the end of the day you'll be the old man or woman looking back on what you've done and if it's something you regret it'll be the worst feeling. You always have to do what you enjoy, never compromise on that. Always make the music that makes you excited, don't do it for anybody else.

You heard the woman: Do it for yourself!

A LIFE IN MUSIC

1979 Born into a musical family in Masterton in rural New Zealand, spends her first 15 years playing the guitar and piano at home before playing in grunge bands in high school.	2001 Starts the band, Two Lane Blacktop with friends at uni, playing lead guitar. Their first single, 'The Rat' is played on indie-music on Godfather John Peel's BBC Radio 1 program in the UK. Two years later, they go on tour in the US – but breakup, before they release of their first album.	2004 Nick Littlemore of Pnau and later Empire of the Sun asks her to join his band, Teenager. Their track, 'Pony', can be heard on the video game GTA IV. He then encourages her to focus on solo work upon first hearing it.	2007 Appears on 'Embrace', from Pnau's self-titled album.	2008 Releases first album, Ladyhawke . Tracks 'My Delirium' and 'Paris is Burning' fall just outside the top ten of Triple J's Hottest 100 – as does 'Embrace'.	2010 Collaborates with members of The Horrors and The Klaxons on as-yet unreleased material.	2012 Releases second album, Anxiety .	2012 Plays a kick-ass set at Splendour in the Grass (which the Blitz staff got to watch).

Don't ever pretend to be something that you're not; honesty comes through in your music and people can tell if you're not enjoying what you're doing.

To score a copy of The Lady's album, email blitz@arc.unsw.edu.au with 'I'm like a bird' as the subject and tell us what country Ladyhawke is native to.

Students on shoes

• Laura Windred

Spent all your money on textbooks in the last few weeks? Sick of living off Mi Goreng? Read on for tips on saving money to get you through the mayhem that is second semester.

Old people might talk your ear off, but they always have cupboards filled with enough food to outlast a post-apocalyptic war.

Pov Interior Design 101

- For a while now I've been wondering why we call discount stores $2 Stores. Hardly anything at Hot Dollar actually costs $1, it's blatantly false advertising! Daiso Japan however, in Chatswood's Mandarin Centre (there's another branch in Bondi Junction), is truly amazing and you can get anything for the one low, bizarre price of $2.80. Eyeliner, cute little paper lanterns, costumes, headphones, stationary and kitchenware? $2.80. Just be careful not to overspend, you can still max out your credit card on discounted shit.
- Why pay for furniture when you can find it on the side of the road? Don't even bother giving it a slick new coat of paint - that costs money, something that needs to be saved for things you can't find on the side of the road, like booze.

Cheap Threads

- Obligatory mention of op-shopping, if you can be bothered to fight hipsters for vintage fashion head out to the massive Tempe Salvos one weekend or find one closer to you at salvosstores.salvos.org.au
- Everything is cheaper online, you should already know this. A lot of places have free shipping (like ASOS.com) and if they don't you can always do your orders with a friend and split the cost of postage.
- Give DIY a go. Studs are terribly chic at the moment: for $1500 you could buy yourself an Alexander McQueen studded leather clutch - or for $3.50 you could buy a packet of studs off eBay and update an old black clutch your nan gave you.
- Head to Arc's Student Flea Markets, around the Blockhouse on Wednesdays Week 5 and Week 9 during semester. You can even sell your stuff (humans not accepted).

The Hunger Games

- We all know as a uni student it's your prerogative to drink coffee (substitute with tea/chai lattes/energy drinks/whatever you need to stay awake during lectures), but at almost $5 a pop not buying these beverages would be an easy and instant way to save cash.
- Check the notice boards (and Blitz of course) for free food events; there are so many people that will pay you in food to hang out with them. Always be on the lookout for club meetings, society or faculty launches, info nights and fundraisers; pretend to be an Engineering student for an afternoon and get a free snag (they tend to have beer too).
- We can't always make it to the Roundhouse in time for Double Happy Hour, so here's some advice for when you're nowhere near UNSW: Gossips Pink Moscato for $4 a bottle (don't judge me, I'm poor and it tastes like pink magic).

Best Kept Secret: Old People

- My nan likes to take herself out for lunch sometimes, which is nice. She then likes to tell me about what she ordered, course by course, and, for good measure, she also relays everything else that had been on the menu. This is a pain in the butt because, to be honest, I don't care - I love her to bits but her digestive habits are of no interest to me.
- While she tells me, though, I smile and nod, and she gives me another vanilla cupcake or a second serving of mouth-watering home-cooked roast beef. Old people might talk your ear off, but they always have cupboards filled with enough food to outlast a post-apocalyptic war. Having lived through various wars, depressions and Federal Governments, pensioners are also a wealth of thrift-related knowledge.

I reckon that'll keep you going until the end of term, and with Christmas on the horizon you'll at least survive until 2013. If you've got any pro tips send them to blitz@arc.unsw.edu.au or post them on facebook.com/blitz and change someone's life.

Apart from Christmas and birthdays, the Holy Grail for uni students is of course free money from uni or the government. Check out centralink.gov.au and scholarships.online.unsw.edu.au to see if there's any way you can grab some extra mullah for, well, just being you.

ROUNDHOUSE DEGREES

ROUNDHOUSE DEGREES

Free life Lessons

Feeling like you're not getting what you want or need from your degree? Are you enrolled in Chemical Engineering but longing to have mad hip hop dance skills? We've got you covered with a whole new semester of Roundhouse Degrees. Since it's Week 3 we've already missed script writing and a DJ class (hey, you can just keep using your iPod), but make sure you pencil in all of the exciting courses still to come.

Week 4 - Aug 8 Latin Dance You'll hopefully still have your flamenco skirt or sexy moustache lying around from the Foundation Day Salsa Fiesta.	Week 9 - Sept 19 Candia Making Every now and then the power goes out and you're trapped in perpetual Earth Hour. Take this opportunity to stock up on supplies for when we run out of coal.	Week 11 - Oct 9 Knitting Christmas is coming, and you don't want to be caught out just because you're a poor student. Think socks, scarves, beanies, jumpers or, if all else fails, just give the needles and wool as the present.
Week 5 - Aug 15 Song Writing Not everyone can compose a song with the lyrical simplicity of Rebecca Black's 'Friday', but it's worth a try.	Week 10 - Sept 25 Hip Hop Dance Do your friends make fun of you for always pulling a duck face and doing the same dance moves? It's never a bad idea to learn a few new moves for the Roundhouse 4-foot.	Week 12 - Oct 18 Acting Class While it seems like the key to getting famous is going on reality TV, let's kick a old school with some actual acting lessons.
Week 6 - Aug 22 Traveling abroad It's time to plan your end of year around the world trip so that you have something to live for during exams.	Week 13 - Oct 25 Speed Dating By this stage you'll be running around buying Christmas presents, getting ready for the End of Session Party and preparing for exams. You need everything in a rush, including love.

Come along to this week's poker lesson for a chance to be as cool as Clooney and as devious as Damon in Ocean's Eleven.

WHEN OPPORTUNITY KNOCKS

Sydney's Best Op-Shops

Following these last two weeks of terrorizing your wallet buying bus passes, textbooks and three coffees a day at uni just to stay awake, this week's Blitz is all about living on the cheap. Here at Blitz HQ we put our heads together to map out the best of the best op-shops around Sydney for just about anything you need.

Mise en scène

Salvation Army
 114 Elizabeth Street, St Peters

Need furniture and kitschy decorations to make your share-house a home? Look no further! Plus it's only fitting that the biggest Salvos in the Southern Hemisphere is next to the biggest IKEA in the Southern Hemisphere.

DIY Library

Ted Noffs Opportunity Shop
 114 Elizabeth Street, Randwick

Book depository, schmook depository - for a great selection of cheap reads hit this place up; if you're lucky you might even find some old uni textbooks here and save yourself some serious dough.

Fake It 'Til Ya Make It

St Vincent De Paul
 114 Oxford Street, Paddington

Want to front like a Kardashians on eine kleinen budget? Head to the fanciest of all op-shops, Vinies Paddo. It's smack bang in the middle of a bunch of expensive men's and women's fashion stores so this Vinies socks everything from Country Road to Armani.

The other plus of visiting all these op-shops is that all the money you spend goes to charity, instead of those bigwigs at Coles and Woolies, so have a good look and dig deep.

Accidents Happen

St Vincent De Paul
 114 Anzac Parade, Maroubra

Apart from free food, wifi, accommodation (yeah, who doesn't love sleeping in the Library) and magazines (mmm free Blitz and Tharunka), what else can you get for free at uni? How about access to one of the craziest and creepiest museums in Sydney, the Museum of Human Disease up in the Samuels Building, behind Matthews?

If you need to whet your weirdo appetite on Kenso campus, here's a list of the top 10 weird and unexpected stuff you can see in the Museum of Human Disease to alleviate your mediocrity:

1. Check out teeth, skin and hair - growing inside of an ovary.

2. Recoil from gangrenous feet - and hope they don't chase after you a la the finale of Game of Thrones.

3. Check out a cerebral haemorrhage (I know, a cinch compared to the gangrene).

4. Wince in front of the kidney that is 30-40% its normal size - naturally, there's a normal kidney for comparison preserved right next to it, just to freak you out even more.

5. Examine a lung with tuberculosis (I was reliably informed this is the oldest specimen in the museum... joy).

6. There is an entire wall taken up by diseases caused by those little rolls of nicotine... with that and the campus-wide smoking ban, if you want to kick the habit, try to stomach this.

7. Find a heart with mitral valve damage caused by chronic rheumatic heart disease. [Ed: Must stop heading to Maccas between classes.]

8. Scare yourself by getting up close to a 60-year-old specimen of the contagious disease diphtheria, preserved in the throat of a six-year-old child. While this disease has been eradicated in most developed nations through vaccinations, outbreaks can still occur and the Guinness World Records cite it as the most resurgent disease...

9. Find out what all of those sunscreen ads are all about by viewing a malignant skin melanoma.

10. And finally, the most fascinating and relevant for many today, is the cross-section of a breast riddled with cancer.

For students interested in changing their world perspective and being instilled with just a little awe at the fact they are alive, head to diseasemuseum.unsw.edu.au for more deets.

OPEN WEEKDAYS 3-5PM, FREE FOR UNSW STUDENTS & STAFF, $10 FOR NON-UNSW ADULTS.

No doubt you've all heard about the recent violence in Sydney. From Kings Cross to Bondi Junction, the media is telling us that Sydney is getting more dangerous to live in by the day.

Except it's not – despite the hysteria, the statistics say that NSW is the safest it's been in years. The latest report from the Bureau of Crime Statistics and Research indicates that crime rates in Sydney for the past 12 months have been relatively stable and have decreased significantly over the last five years. Violent crime is down 3% and property crime is down 5%. Looking at individual regions, violent crime in inner Sydney (including Kings Cross) is down 6%, and in the Eastern Suburbs (including UNSW and Bondi Junction) it's down 7%.

In fact the rate of assaults per 100,000 people is lower in Sydney than in NSW as a whole. So don't let the hysteria get to you and stop you from having a good time, just be sure to exercise common sense.

Here on campus, remember to have Security Services' number saved in your phone just in case you run into trouble—it's 9385 6666. A little-known service offered by security is an escort service from anywhere on campus to the bus stop, car park, or other locations. Useful for those late-night study (cram) sessions! Just call 9385 6000.

Feng Shui Your Life

Seeking marks, mullah and someone to make out with?

Money can't buy happiness, so why not work on your spirit for free? Feng Shui has been rockin' for centuries, so cotton on and follow these beginners tips for life-changing chi.

Be Centis-ible With Your Money

Following the unit's SSAF and prices of a MyBus2 (or a 1 if you're feeling risky), there's no better time to turn to the stars for a financial pick-me-up. For the cash dollaz, it's all about the Kia kds everyone has a unique Kia number and for financial success, this number will dictate what direction you should face when counting up your pennies.

- Start with the year you were born and add the last two digits together (for 1991 add $9 + 1 = 10$).
- Then add those two digits together ($1 + 0 = 1$) and add 5 ($1 + 5 = 6$).

- Lastly, if this number is double digits, add those two numbers together.
- THIS is your Kia number.

- Following your number, you can then align your direction accordingly:

1; SE, 2; WE, 3; S, 4; N, 5; SW, 6; W, 7; NW, 8; SW, 9; E.

Place your wallet or piggy bank in this area of your room, enter the bank from this angle or scan for coins in the sand facing this direction, in no time you'll be shouting us all punchbowlz at The White House.

Mental Mantra

Being students, your #1 concern is obviously academic success – or at least that's what I heard at Unibar once. To gain clarity and focus, chant the mantra below either seven or 105 times (for reasons unknown). When chanting, think of what you want in terms of your future assessments, class involvement or study.

(My one and only test proves this works 100% of the time.)

"Om ye dharma hetu prabhava hetun teshun teshan tathagato hyavadat teshan cha yo, nirudha evam vad maha shramana ye svaha."

Being students, your #1 concern is obviously academic success – or at least that's what I heard at Unibar once.

Unleash Your Love Animal

Last, but not least, is the tricky art and science of love. It's already picking up in tutes and at uni parties so far, then put the love potions down and read on. Each Chinese Star Sign has a corresponding 'Peach Blossom Animal', and this is your key to romance.

Once you have worked out your Peach Blossom Animal, place a figurine of that particular animal in your 'love dungeon' in the mentioned direction. The better the ornament, the better quality lover potential you shall receive.

Your Chinese Star Sign:

1985 - Cow, 1986 - Tiger, 1987 - Rabbit, 1988 - Dragon, 1989 - Snake, 1990 - Horse, 1991 - Sheep, 1992 - Monkey, 1993 - Chicken, 1994 - Dog, 1995 - Pig, 1996 - Rat, and so on.

Your Peach Blossom Animal:

Rat, Dragon and Monkey = Rooster (face West)
Ox, Rooster and Snake = Horse (face South)
Tiger, Horse and Dog = Rabbit (face East)
Rabbit, Sheep and Pig = Rat (face North)

So give it a go, after all Chinese astrology has been around for 1000s of years. And to quote Confucius: "You've got shit all else to lose." Good luck!

THE DARK KNIGHT RISES
Director: Christopher Nolan

Taking place eight years after 'The Joker's antics, we return to a calm Gotham City, void of corruption and with no need for a superhero. Bruce Wayne, banished to his mansion, has swapped his bat suit for a walking stick, while the city's criminals are locked away due to the efforts of the late and once sane, Harvey Dent (who later became 'Two Face' in The Dark Knight).

But, as always in the comic world, it's not long before a new villain appears, in the form of Bane. A frightening opening scene will have you on the edge of your seat from the get go, making the just under three hour blockbuster fly by. Critics and fans expectations will be high and it's hard to imagine anyone being let down by this masterpiece. That is of course, apart from recent real life tragic events that occurred in the US, scarily mirroring emotions acted out in alarming scenes on screen in a disturbing 'life imitates art' moment. Where's anti-gun Batman when it comes to weapon reform in the US?

Be sure to catch it while it remains on the big screen - your lounge room just won't do it justice.

JUSTIN BIEBER
Believe

After Week 1's Hipsters vs. Hippies Start of Session Party, it's easy to forget just how amazeballs the mainstream can be, case in point is Justin Bieber's latest album Believe.

With this album Justin has evolved into a young gentleman of pop. There's no talk of bitches or ho's here - all he wants is a beauty and a beat, one love, and for you to realize "you're an angel who forgot how to fly" - swoooooon.

From club bangers like 'All Around the World' to the cute and sweet 'Catching Feelings', the Frankie Valli-esque 'Die in Your Arms' and the gospel sounding title track, this album is an interesting eclectic experiment.

However, the album's let down by the collaborations: Ludacris, (who I'll blame for the worst attempt at dubstep my ears have ever been subjected to), Big Sean, Drake and Nicki Minaj all do nothing but complicate the sound. YOU DON'T NEED THEM JUSTIN!

With 25 million twitter followers, I'd say JB doesn't need your money - Spotify this one kids.

LADYHAWKE
Metro Theatre

For Australian musicians, it's almost a rite of passage to base yourself overseas first, before coming home with something more to prove. Ladyhawke's just kicked off her Australian and NZ tour, introducing audiences to her catchy and powerful new record Anxiety, and I was interested to see if her relocation to the UK and back had influenced her artistic approach and sound.

As was always my plan, I arrived at The Metro just before she whisked onto stage with her electric guitar, skinny black jeans and signature wild blonde hair. Performing to a not quite full house the set kicked off just past 10pm with her new material, 'Blue Eyes', 'Black, White and Blue' and 'Vaccine' - all of which have infectious hooks. The new tracks sounded a little grungier and a little more rock than her famous early singles, whilst maintaining an easy sing-along pop sensibility. Sadly, the crowd could only be described as tame - perhaps because of Ladyhawke's lack of interaction with the crowd and the rest of the band.

Ladyhawke continued to grind through the set with her soaring vocals and simple yet blistering guitar solos for 'Magic', 'Sunday Drive', 'Back of the Van' and 'Professional Suicide'. It was not until her encore, however, when Ladyhawke finally cracked the hard-to-please crowd. Before she went off stage, she nervously murmured "Ok this is my last song... but not really my last song..." which was the extent to her interaction with the audience for the night. Somehow that must've done the trick, as when she came back for her two encores, 'Paris is Burning' and 'My Delirium', delirious we were! Although it took a while to get there, Ladyhawke brought the house down.

DIARY:

We just missed them performing at Oxford Art Factory mid-July, but new shows will be announced on FB soon.

Q&A WITH HARRY

Such an inspired name. How'd you pick it?

We started the band when we were 16 years old and upskirts were all we ever thought about. We never matured so we kept it, although a couple of us can now grow facial hair.

How would you describe your sound to someone who hasn't heard you before?

Like four dudes playing instruments who should have stopped trying a long time ago.

How do you write your songs?

Thom is the key song writer in the band, generally he will come up with something, show us his ideas and we construct it from there. Otherwise songs can evolve from one riff or guitar sound, and us just jamming on them.

When I hear 'She Devil', I think of Gang of Four, Fugazi and even some early Deerhunter. I'd be tempted to call it dance punk but you're way surfer than that... Who else are your influences?

We've been listening to a whole bunch of all kinds of different alternative rock bands, but when it comes down to it, the bands which we draw the most influence from and are generally our favourites: the classic alternative bands like Queens of the Stone Age, Nirvana and The Strokes. We're also heavily influenced by a lot of our friends' bands and other local acts that we play with around Sydney.

What's the best thing about being in a young band?

Playing live with three of your best friends is pretty rad, partying after your gigs with all your friends and of course, venue drink tokens.

How do you want people to feel when they leave your gigs? Violated and bruised, yet oddly satisfied.

Head along to Band Comp in the Roundhouse on Wed 10pm to hear what UNSW students have to offer your ears.

Q&A MuSoc

This week Blitz talks terror, triumph and tiny keyboards with MuSoc's Nicola Scarf (Arts)

So what's the most popular song performed at MuSoc Open Mic Nights?
We don't have a most played song, but we have blacklisted 'Hallelujah' and 'Wonderwall' from being performed at the shows.

And where else do you guys get booked to perform around Sydney apart from at the Roundhouse?
Our ensembles get booked by the UNSW Colleges, for private functions on cruises and at RSLs and we have an army of buskers who play around Sydney.

The vocal ensembles also tend to sing/stalk people around Kingsford late at night after practice.

That's kind of weird dude. Speaking of weird, does anyone play a super random instrument?
We have several ukulele players actually, but the weirdest instrument we've had on stage was a pretty memorable performance with a kalimba, a tiny, tiny keyboard.

Playing an instrument: no-one's heard of would be pretty nerve wracking - got any pro tips for curing stage fright?
The best cure for stage fright is to just take a deep breath and do it, if the audience is good, it won't matter how well you perform and eventually you just get over it.

And finally, how does someone get involved with MuSoc?
We take everyone from complete beginners to seasoned performers and just music appreciators, and this semester we're running Open Mic nights, vocal and jazz ensembles and master classes, so there's heaps of opportunities to come along. Just add MuSoc UNSW on Facebook or come along next Monday at 6:30pm at the Club Bar.

CLUB LOVER: CHARLOTTE LEWIS (ARTS)

Australasian Union of Jewish Students

Why did you join AUJS?

My dad went to UNSW and he told me it should be the first club I join. I'd also gone to a Jewish school so I felt the need to continue to have a sense of community in university.

What kind of events do AUJS have?

BQs, Purim parties - which besides religious significance involve drinking copious amounts of wine - wine and cheese tastings, movie nights, mixers and whatever else we can think of.

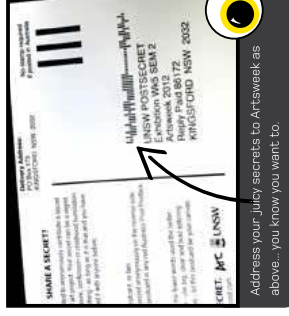

I heard you guys can get pretty crazy too, sometimes.

I guess finishing off four punchbowl in the space of 15 minutes with seven or eight members is kind of crazy.

That all sounds pretty cool, is it hard to do all that organising while you're doing a full time uni degree?

We work together and I'm good at managing my time; in fact, I even just started Pedantic Semantic, my own editing business!

What's the most disgusting thing you can think of?

Zebra penis soup in South East Asia.

Best tip for saving money?

Don't carry any with you.

Best cheap eats and drinks?

Scubar—it's seedy as!

SUSAN

Graduate Diploma of International Relations

What's the most disgusting thing you can think of?

In high school I saw a neighbour's cat eating a bird.

Which type of bird do you think you would be?

Something high and fast—a friendly eagle maybe?

How's this semester going?

Well, I'm only in two days a week, so I'm not overwhelmed yet.

MATTHEW Mathematics

What's the most disgusting thing that you can think of?

One time this guy got so sick at my place that he was vomiting and sh-tting at the same time.

How's this semester going?

Terrible, I think it's going to be shit for the whole semester.

Best tips for saving money?

I should know that, I'm such a tight arse, how about: don't eat out and bring coffee to uni.

EMILY

Best cheap eats and drinks?

Mickeys on Oxford—I love the Mexican food there.

How's this semester going?

Suddenly I'm sleep deprived again!

What's your best op-shop buy?

This jumper; my mum hates it and keeps trying to throw it out. I also bought all my household stuff from op-shops—glasses, tea cups, dishes, the kettle—all of it.

DOM
Arts/Fine Arts

What's the most disgusting thing you can think of?

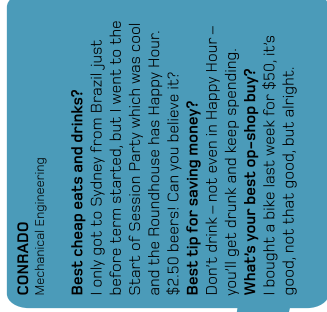

I threw up in my dad's mouth when I was a baby.

Which type of bird do you think you would be?

An Australian raven—the really big ones.

What's your best op-shop buy?

I used to work in an op-shop and I got a corset for $10 that I love; oh, and five pairs of shoes for $1.

CONRADO
Mechanical Engineering

Best cheap eats and drinks?

I only got to Sydney from Brazil just before term started, but I went to the Start of Session Party which was cool and the Roundhouse has Happy Hour.

Best tip for saving money?

$2.50 beers! Can you believe it?

What's your best op-shop buy?

I bought a bike last week for $50, it's good, not that good, but alright.
