What do you study?
Industrial Design
What do you want to be when you grow up?
A real man.
What's your dream mid-sem break holiday?
Copenhagen. Hands down. If you haven't been, CIT to Sydney and get there. Beautiful people, stunning design, cheap alcohol, incredible public transport system.
Shoot, shag, marry: Tarzan, Miley Cyrus, the Easter Bunny. Not far that there are gender-specific options, but regardless I'd shoot Miley (duh), shag Tarzan (the Bresnan Fraser version), marry the Easter Bunny (wouldn't it be neat?).
Which dead celebrity would you like to see alive today and why?
Elvis from Patsy's Up. EVERYONE KNOWS WHY.
Who would you play in the movie of your life?
Quite obviously Aziz Ansari.
Best food on campus?
WHITE HOUSE JALAPENO POPPERS.

What do you want to be when you grow up?
A film director in New York!
What's your dream mid-sem break holiday?
A stress-free week where my uni work has been magically completed and I can spend my time reading, watching movies and sleeping.
Shoot, shag, marry: Tarzan, Miley Cyrus, the Easter Bunny. Shoot Miley, shag Tarzan and marry the Easter Bunny.
Which dead celebrity would you like to see alive today and why?
Steve Jobs. After recently watching the film Jobs I have a newfound appreciation for the man who co-founded Apple.
Who would you play in the movie of your life?
Jenny. Lawrence.
Best food on campus?
The latest place on lower campus near the IGA. Amazing!

Australian hip hop group Bliss n Eso are no strangers to the spotlight. Since their debut album in 2004, known as the "Circus," they've grown to become household names in the Aussie music industry. Bliss spoke with MC Bliss about their upcoming tour, "Under the Stars Tour," and their legendary rise to the top.

Obviously you guys are one of the most prolific Australian hip hop groups ever. Have you noticed a big difference in the hip hop landscape since 2004?

Massive. We were lucky because when we got started it was just a baby in 2004. I was still at this point where there was a little success from the HipHopoids while the rest of the US were still playing for a hundred people at a pub.

You managed to get Fat Joe on your latest album, "Circus in the Sky." What was it like working with a hip hop legend?

It was great! I think the way we've approached it is a song which we were kind of blown away by. The tour never ended up happening but the song did. To come full circle and get to a point where we can collaborate with that guy is pretty cool.

What tips could you give for artists trying to make it big?

Too many people.transpose music as the feeling. If you really want to try and get it to work, Dave Grish had it best when he was talking about all the shows like Australian Idol. They're forgetting about the whole reality of just getting together with a bunch of mates, getting some instruments and making it. The thing is that you think you're great, but you listen back and you're like, "My god!" I think that's a big challenge but it happened. Without sounding cocky, I was doing something totally new for your upcoming tour. Can we get any info?

I can't really tell you but I can say this has never been done before. It has to do with the way we enter the stage and the way we play the gig. I think the crowd is going to love that shit.

If you could give any advice to your younger self, what would it be?

You know, it's funny, I think a lot more people are waking up to more positive thinking, that vibe and visualization in terms of goal achievement. I was so much more about that I don't even realize I was doing a lot of these things already. If I had to say to myself, "Don't change anything!" I really mean that I look back. I can pinpoint things I was saying, doing and thinking and it makes total sense because all I was doing was concentrating on this one thing and I just didn't realize it. But it happened. Without sounding cocky, I was doing something totally new for your upcoming tour. Can we get any info?

I can't really tell you but I can say this has never been done before. It has to do with the way we enter the stage and the way we play the gig. I think the crowd is going to love that shit.

GET WILD IN THE JUNGLE

The mid-semester Jungle Party is coming up at the Roundhouse on Thurs 17 April and we’re already stressing about what to wear (surely it’s got nothing to do with all the assignments we have done). Lucky for you, we’ve put together this bitchez’ quiz to narrow down your options and point you in the right direction. Don’t worry, your mum never wears the wrong thing! (Ed. So punny. So painfully punny.)

1. Your favourite part of uni life is:
   A. The people. That’s why we’re here, right?
   B. The events. Nothing like some society parties to get you through the week
   C. The work. You don’t have time for anything else

2. Favourite place on campus?
   A. Upper Campus. Screw the Basser Steps
   B. The Quad. You like to be right in the middle of things
   C. Lower Campus. It’s closer to the Law Library

3. You’re stuck in the jungle and you can only bring one item. It is:
   A. A book. Entertainment is key
   B. A friend. Loneliness kills faster than dehydration in your books
   C. A knife. Constant vigilance!

4. At a party, you’re most likely to be found:
   A. Socialising. You’re only here to make friends
   B. On the dance floor, busting a move
   C. Party? What party? You have a 90 average to uphold

5. You can go anywhere in the world. You would go to:
   A. Europe
   B. Asia
   C. Africa

6. Your uni attire is:
   A. Rippled pyjamas with no shoes. You live on campus
   B. Something sleek and sexy. You like to turn heads
   C. A safari suit. Camouflage is key when you haven’t done your hot readings

7. Your faculty is:
   A. Arts and Social Sciences or Built Environment
   B. Medicine, OBE or Engineering
   C. Law, Science or Business

8. Choose a jungle animal:
   A. Monkey
   B. Leopard
   C. Alligator

Jungle Party is gonna get seriously wild — do not miss this shit! Tickets are $10 Arc, $15 UNSW and $20 GA, available from unswwoundhouse.com. Strictly no door entry.

Mostly As: Tarzan
Finally you have an excuse to dread your locks and walk out of the house wearing minimal clothing (at least aim for leopard print undies, please). On the night, you can go as the monkey-wielding Tarzan himself, or the prehistoric jungle pal Jane. Get ready to dance with the animals and get sweaty.

Mostly Bs: The Tiger/Tigress
Lions and tigers and bears, oh my! You fit into this category because you’re the party animal and everybody knows that sexy tigers like to get down. Whip out your best animal onesie (if Pokémon counts as animals, right?) and get ready to party all night long! Don’t leave baby Dink alone, though.

Mostly Cs: The Poacher
Why so serious? The Jungle Party is the perfect opportunity for you to loosen up and get out of sight of light mode. To stay true to your personality, aim to emulate Van Pelt from JustJared. A safari suit complete with a red cape and blunderbuss will let people know you’re there for the party, but not to mess with you. You have assignments to finish.

HOW TO

1. START A CLUB

Arc seems to have a club for everything. Pony Set for fans of My Little Pony, the Malla Society for budding hit men and the Secret Society for those who like to fantasize that they’re members of Yale’s Skull and Bones. But if by some strange twist of fate your particular finish isn’t covered (there’s no club that appreciates Star Wars. For shame!), you can always start your own.

To get a club going, you first need an original idea that isn’t too similar to one that already exists. It also needs to be something you’re passionate about and willing to commit your time to. Next you need to read Arc’s Clubs and Societies Handbook to find out more about the affiliation process (affiliation is the procedure of becoming officially associated with Arc).

Up next is your club’s very first Annual General Meeting (AGM), where at least five of your peers need to agree to be part of your club (pro, your mum doesn’t count). For this you’ll need to book a room and give notice to Arc and your members at least seven days prior to the meeting. It’s best to email all club members and send a copy to Student Development (clubs@arc.unsw.edu.au).

The last step is to hold your AGM! Everyone needs to sign an attendance form and someone needs to take minutes. Then, in the spirit of democracy, you’ll need to adopt your club’s constitution and elect your executives. It’s all very official and there’s a lot of paperwork involved, but it’ll be worth it when you’re president of UNSW’s brand new Custard Wrestling Appreciation Club or the Society for Gentlemanly Pursuits.

#SOCIAL STALKER

Be the most organised (and stylish) student on campus with an Instagram, be stationary with a range including the limited edition 2014 diary, shopping list (includes some fruit and veg, guys, not just micin’) look-books and the recently launched greeting card range. Graphic designer Beck Wadworth has you covered.

Check out her blog for some seriously cool interior design tips and get that share house of yours organised.

5 WAYS TO IMPRESS AT UNIGAMES TRIALS

By Alley

HAVE AN INTENSE HATE FOR UTS

Forget Lloyd, hating UTS is a major requirement during trial day. They always seem to leave with a medal and we’re shown with envy. In a show of solidarity between every other uni, we’ve even come up with a ‘We Hate UTS’ chant. Learn it, and you’ll impress your captain.

BE ABLE TO SURVIVE ON LESS THAN 2 HOURS SLEEP A NIGHT

Insomnia? Then sign up: Unigames is all about team bonding and what better way to bond than four team outings, only to wake up a few hours later for a 9am match?

TURN UP TO TRIALS IN YOUR BEST PARTY COSTUME

Forget your skills on the field, your captain wants your dress-up skills! Do you have a Power Rangers costume? Wear it. A onesie? Dust it off and put it on. Best dressed, first in… or is it the other way around?

LISTEN TO YOUR UNIGAMES VETERANS

If you’re a Unigames fresher, then you’re at the bottom of the pecking order. If a Vet says jump, you say, ‘Yes, let me buy you a drink instead’.

KNOW HOW TO PLAY A SPORT

This might help your chances too, but no promises.

THE INTERVIEW

RESET WITH THE PRESETS

Aussie dance royalty The Presets are back and bigger than ever with a headline slot at Groovin the Moo to follow the release of their new single ‘Goodbye Future’. blitz caught up with half of the genius duo, Kim Moyes, about their upcoming plans, collaborations and what fans can expect from their epic Groovin set this April.

You just released a new single ‘Goodbye Future’ – what’s the story behind the tune?

It’s a song about letting go and freedom. We were looking to make something more upbeat and insert the message in there of letting yourself go and not controlling everything all the time.

What can we expect from your headlining show at Groovin?

We’re putting together a new show, getting a lot more electronic and a new lighting set up. I don’t wanna say too much. I don’t wanna ruin the surprise. But yeah it will be a new show with lots of bells and whistles.

You guys have been pretty outrageously successful. Do you ever feel any pressure to conform to people’s expectations of you? Or do you find that being successful offers you more creative freedom?

We actually feel most of the pressure coming from ourselves to be able to deliver something that’s gonna resonate with other people, but also something that we actually believe in. I think in the past we tried to make music to fit the mould of what people would expect us to do and found that it’s been really unsatisfactory, so we stopped that in its tracks and threw those ideas out the window. We just focus on the things we really felt were representative of how we were feeling at the time.

Check out the boys tearing up the stage at Groovin the Moo in Maitland on Sat 26 April and Canberra on Sun 27 April. Tickets are $104.50, available from gtm.net.au

USA or Europe for Exchange

Let me ask you this: What sounds like the ultimate uni experience? A cathedral tour or a college basketball final with 3,000 students screaming "U, U, Go Heels, Go!" while Michael Jordan studied? Exactly. This was just one of a thousand mind-blowingly good films I had in the US. But do you remember the excitement of watching a match, or just qualify, the benefits of an Aussie accent? Well that's just one tip: don't cast me away.

You know that scene in the movies where people are drinking red cups and playing beer pong at frat parties? THAT'S EXACTLY how it is. But do you want college life or university life?

Go to Europe when you're retired and want a riverboat cruise. Or a working holiday visa, if you must, NOT for exchange.

Yes, yes, yes. Europe has so much history and culture, you say. Have you not seen "People of Walmart?" Where do you think "Hail, hail!" or "Shit nobody get time for stuff" came from? THIS kind of culture is far superior to anything you'll find in a church. It also comes in the form of $5 buns that'll put German in the corner (God bless illegal immigration).

If you're still not convinced, you're obviously not cool enough for the US anyway. In which case, go to Europe and enjoy the middle-aged Brits that are as living as you are. Everybody else: strap yourself in and get ready for the most insane experience of your life.

‘USA’ says Lionel Wilson

‘Europe’ says Siddharth Laha

Why go to Europe on exchange? If you only need one reason, it's that you can find yourself in a different country within just a few hours. Weekend trips over national borders are so readily available — it's not even funny. During my exchange to the UK, there was one occasion when a friend and I left Dublin in Ireland, lunch in Northern Ireland and dinner in Ireland. Yes, that's three meals in three different countries!

You could find yourself doing the slopes in Austria one morning and eating dinner at the Hofbrähaus in Munich that night. Maybe you'll find yourself in Switzerland and then a Venetian canal ride by twilight, or even sample the finest Belgian chocolate in Brussels and then the finest — ahem, delicacies — in Amsterdam. The options are endless.

And to make all of this easier, European universities have far less contact hours than us, so there is always time.

But be aware: whilst applying you'll undoubtedly come across the obsession American uni exchange students will argue that Europe misses on dates and red cups. Simply replace a throwback fraternity drink with Oklahoma or Glastonbury and substitute a red cup for a stop. If you argue nothing's more extreme than an NFL game, talk about how you plan on running from the bulls in Spain. And if they start to bring up Halloween or Thanksgiving, you know you have your St. Patrick's Day in Ireland or Tomorrowland in Belgium. Who said waiting to be slammed on the table.

What a Time to be Alive

Everyone loves a good suit, or so Barney Stinson tells me. If only you could get a custom made, perfect fit without having to seek out a tailor...

Oh, wait a second. You totally got it. Introducing the MR Port scanner, a fully automated 3D scanner that allows you to receive a suit in your choice of fabric, colour, cut and design, tailored perfectly to your physique. Step inside the Sydney based scanner and receive your exact body measurements in minutes.

The technology came about to aid online clothing purchases but hey, anything's possible with 3D imaging. I think we've got Michael Fassbender in there to test it out.

Acting

Ah, is there any greater violation in social physics than the movement between crippling insecurity, heady ambition and poorly concealed self-pity in a young thug? Take part in the wild ride that is the projection of human emotion in this Roundhouse How To.

Hot off of his heartwrenching Academy Award winning film UNSW Fury, The Boor Steps to the #93 Queue (verdict of truth not recommended), Jon Williams will be walking you through how to extract the drama from melodrama. Witness our university’s expressions of tragedy, comedy and passion all at once and at its varying degree of quality. All participants are welcome – in the absence of any experience it is suggested you substitute enthusiasm. For those who are a bit NUTS or reside in Studio Four, how about showing off those expressive gams, metaphorically speaking?

Latin Dance

Everyone has watched it, everyone has admired it and everyone has fallen on the floor while attempting it (or was that just me)? Latin dance. This seemingly fluid movement of feet and legs has long been the fodder of seductive movie dance scenes, so if you’re looking for a way to shimmy up to that alluring Lovestruck across the dance floor, look no further.

Hosted by UNSW’s very own Latin Dance Society, put your best foot forward and get on this Roundhouse How To. Targeted at those with zero comprehension of the rhythmic undertakings involved in Latin dancing, you have no dignity to lose, only moves to learn.

Jungle Party

In the jungle, the mighty jungle, the students party tonight.

At the Electrical Engineering CATS rooms starting to feel the prism walls to the greenery, walls showing you George's waiting vegetables that barely pass as substantial. Get a minimum exam timetable that needs more like a death sentence? Well, it's time to break out of captivity at the Roundhouse's midsemester Jungle Party.

Whether you don't want to do it like they do on the Discovery Channel, this Roundhouse party is all about getting in touch with your animal side. Civilization is great and all, but if you're looking for the chance to forget about deadlines and commitments, you've got it.

But before you go ransacking all that industrial, venture to the Roundhouse website to get your tickets. You can't get them at the door and the Back to School and Toga Party (both sold out for Glitz forecasts), so go in quick and get armed.

Laid-back dress bonds are strictly mandatory.

Flea Markets

We all have that friend. You know the one - they wake up at 8am every day, are at every society event, work 25 hours a week, maintain their WAM... and always look like they've walked straight off a runway (claiming they've never spent more than $10 on an item of clothing).

Ever wonder how they do it? Here's your answer: Arc's Flea Markets! Who needs regular shops when you can shop at these after the mind-numbing tutors?

They're a smorgasbord of goodies of all kinds - clothes, accessories, art, and more. They're 9:30am-12pm, board games, puzzles. Just want some comfort food or those assignments you're stressing over? They've got bread, coffee, tea, cake, pasta, and a few BBQ. All to the dulcet tunes of soothing live music. Yay, that's a winning formula. We said.

Oh, and you can't make it this time, never fear - they're on again on 29 April.

Do you like Star Wars? Did you enjoy the 2010 film Burlesque starring Cher and Christina Aguilera? If you answered yes to either one of these odd questions, then do I have a live show for you!

The Empire Strips Back is a Star Wars themed burlesque show that’s rising in popularity right around Australia. This interesting blend of genres comes from the creative treasure chest that is Russell & Leil’s mind. The show took its original form in 2011 when Beatle unexpectedly sold out three shows. Since then the performance has gone from strength to strength. Originally meant for a small stage, the show’s been adapted for the big time, complete with full size R2-D2 and seven-foot Wookies – enough to make a full grown, Jedi-wielding pants with excitement.

The Empire Strips Back can be seen as an extension to the Star Wars universe, as it embraces all the complicated franchise and brings the magic from the screen to the stage in a very humorous and intriguing way. This is an excellent opportunity for all Star Wars fans to see their favourite franchise in a different medium, but at the end of the day, we won’t force you to go (see really shouldn’t have to).!

By Helen T Thambor

To celebrate this epic carnival of Star Wars goodness, BSHL has two double passes for you away. To win, email us at BSHL@buzz.com.au, as with the word HAN in the subject line and tell us why you think the sexiest Star Wars character is and why.

HOW TO

SPEND YOUR HOLIDAYS ON CAMPUS

Step 3. Personal movie theatre

What do you think those giant screens in all the lecture theatres are for? Tutorial presentations? I don’t think so. Pick your favourite movie, take your donuts, sport the sound and save yourself $10 and the trip down to Event Cinemas. Why not make it a marathon? Invite your friends and charge them admission. Popcorn recommended. (Ed: We believe there are microscreens on campus for this exact reason.)

Step 4. Be a photographer for a day

Just wander around campus, pretend to be all arty and take pictures of trees and those random little sculptures we seem to have everywhere. Nobody will be there to judge you or call you a hippie, so just let loose your inner artist. Maybe invite that someone with the hot bed you have a crush on for a named photoshoot on the Nailed Lady Lawn. HILO (right?)

Step 5. Have a feast

Tired from all that partying, pranking, movie watching and photography? Luckily we have a 24-hour McDonalds within spitting distance. Buck across the road and treat yourself to a quick McChamp Meal because, after all, you’ve earned it.

By Zach Soderbol

DVD in the Mail

Step 1. Imbibe in moderation

Guest what? You don’t have class tomorrow. And nobody is better at responsibly drinking than a uni student. The Foundry’s bar is your oyster and the campus is your playground. A beer will make the Basser Steps more bearable and nude runs are way less embarrassing when there aren’t twenty thousand other students watching you.

Step 2. Pull some pranks

This is your chance to really mess with people’s minds. Switch out all the whiteboard markers for permanent markers and mix up the little metal plates that tell you the classroom numbers. A little IKEA interior decoration never goes amiss either, so make up those tutorial room walls. Everyone will appreciate pictures of Brad Pitt made the next time they’re falling asleep in a tute.

FACES OF THE FACULTY

Dr Gregory Dolgopolov

Blitz chats to Dr Gregory Dolgopolov, film lecturer, as we get you familiar with the friendly faces of the UNSW faculties.

How long have you been at UNSW? How did you find yourself here?

I taught Screen Studies at AFTRS (Australian Film Television and Radio School). I then moved to UNSW and have been here for almost 18 years now. My mother also worked at UNSW so I guess I’m keeping up the tradition!

What makes UNSW’s film department more bitchin’ than any other school?

It would definitely be the genuine link between theory and practice. Blending the two facets with the right balance is what makes UNSW different to well-known film institutions like AFTRS and UTS.

What are the craziest and coolest parts of your job?

The most challenging would definitely be marking. You think writing an essay is difficult but marking numerous academic papers as well as practical projects can be a lot of pressure. The most rewarding would be to have contact with the students. Motivating and influencing their future is very fulfilling.

Which character would you most like to play in a movie?

I usually enjoy those mythical and imposing characters like Frankenstein and Cruella De Vil.

If film wasn’t invented, what career would you’ve strived for?

I’d like to work as a difficult access paramedic or in a field hospital during a zombie apocalypse. I feel alive when I’m in the midst of trage. Equilibrium is also important. Zombies have injuries too, everyone deserves equal attention.

Any side projects you’re working on at the moment?

I’m developing a feature called Filmfest – an umbrella organisation to unite all film festivals in Sydney and then Australia to allow audiences opportunities to gain VIP access to film festivals and special events and a rewards scheme to reduce the price of their tickets and to create incentives for them to see more films that they may not have heard about otherwise and to make the job of a festival director easier. I’ve a couple of festivals and it never gets easier and to grow and develop the film festival world as Sydney has one of the biggest collection of film festivals anywhere on earth with a festival on virtually every week and we need to develop them because there is no finite experience than going to see a film at a festival...

In Brief

No Shit Sherlock

Attention all Benedict Cumberbatch fans! (AKA Cumberbitches), The star of the hit TV series Sherlock visited UNSW last fortnight for a QA. He was in Australia to attend thenerdic Con, that’s right. You have officially been within talking distance of Bovilabovitchi Conundrums.

Biomedical Babes

Engineering lectures may no longer be such a sausage fest with the biomedical engineering degree attracting a record number of women this year, 30% more women applied for the course in 2013 than the previous year.

Go8 Proposal

Warning all law, commerce and economics students! UNSW, through it’s involvement in the Go8 university coalition, is preparing to forage foreign government funding and charge students in popular courses full fees. This could increase fees by up to 55%.

Paralympic Snowboader

Joany Badenhorst, a UNSW student, pulled out of the snowboarding competition at the Paralympics because of an injury sustained in training. She was set to be the first Australian woman to compete in the event. And she’s only 28. What a mad respect even though she couldn’t compete.

ARC SPOTLIGHT

Volunteer Army

Life is short and university life is even shorter. One group making sure they get the most out of those golden years is the Volunteer Army.

No they’re not volunteer soldiers willing to go to war, they’re volunteer students willing to help. This squadron makes their way through Sydney helping out at community events and non-profit organisations simply because they give a damn.

38 hours over a year is required to qualify for AVEGS but with the experience you gain and people you meet it’s by no means a chore. Check out the@volunteerarmy.com or email the gang @ volunteer.army@arc.unsw.edu.au to see how you can get involved.

At ease readers.

THE IMPOSTER WINE TASTER

To get you prepped for the De Bortoli wine tasting session from 6-8pm at The White House on Tue 15 April, Blitz reporter Rowan Thambar takes a look at how to fake it ‘til you make it.

Tell me if you’ve ever been in this position before. You’re at a party and it’s the kind of party where you know if you walk into the toilet there’ll be a bowl of after dinner mints and probably a bidet. If you’re now asking what a ‘bidet’ is, you definitely need to keep reading.

At these events they’re serving drinks, usually wine. Now I’m not talking about your classic fruity Leica or Golden Oak out of a metallic can I’m talking actual wine, with an actual year, in an actual bottle. Here are a few tips to help you pretend to be a wine connoisseur:

1. Scent and sniff the wine. I’m not really sure why you need to do this, but that’s how they do it in movies, so I’m pretty sure it’s a requirement.

2. Talk about palatability. This just means how it tastes. Try and talk about ‘undertastes’ and use descriptive words like ‘woody’, ‘tharby’ and ‘arctic’ interchangeably. [They all mean the same thing, right?]

3. Talk about the grapes. While wine uses green grapes and red wine uses red grapes. Talk about how you massage the grapes, slag to the grapes and read the grapes bedtime stories to get them ready for harvest.

4. Lie. Look, if you’re in this position then there is a pretty good chance it’s for a reason. Cast ethics aside and just weave a web of lies. As long as you’re confident no one will ever know that you have no idea about wine.

Or, alternatively, if you’re tired of being the impostor wine taster, let the people at De Bortoli show you how it’s actually done. Register online at facebook.com/ UNSWWhitehouse, but be sure to get in quick – only the first 40 people to register will get access.

An Open Letter to... the Easter Bunny

You used to make me so damn happy.

Like Daphne Williams style happy. I remember clear as day the first time you came to visit me. The smell of warm hot cross buns filled the air and I woke up to the sound of my little brother exclaiming, "Chocolate eggs! Chocolate eggs!"

I was egg-cited. Filled with pure egg-stasy, I raced out of bed and followed the trail of eggs outside and around my backyard. My parents had been dead for some years now and this was the closest thing I’d ever come to a real mother and father.

We gathered up all our eggs and held them precariously between our crossed arms and chins. Running into the kitchen, my brother and I looked at our stash and thought, "Wow! This. Was. Egg-celent."

I can’t remember exactly how long ago that was, but it was the last time I ever heard from you and let me tell you, I’m hot and I’m cross, but I am not a bun. Where have you been? My friends still get to see you every year at Easter. What was it that I did that made you hate me so?

You constantly make me feel cheap! Did Hugh Hefner finally trap you and make you one of his bunnies? You go from house to house, giving your chocolate out to anyone and everyone. How does that continually do the job of shame from every damn home you visit?

You absolutely shame me. I will egg-act my revenge.

Laying Down the Law

Home sweet home or a house of horrors? That’s up to you. Get your name on the lease ASAP or be those poor tips from the NSW Residential Tenancy Act 2010 apply to you.

RENTING RIGHTS
- Submit a condition report within the first week of moving in so that when you evacuate the damage you can’t be charged for damages that existed before your time.
- You’re entitled to exclusive use of your property. Your landlord or agent has to give notice of a visit unless it’s an emergency or if the landlord is a team.
- Inform your landlord about the need for repairs. You can also get reimbursed up to $1000 for urgent repairs you pay for.
- You must be provided with 48 days written notice of a rent increase. May the law be ever in your favour.

RENTING ERRORS
- Don’t disturb your neighbours or start cooking meth on site. Walter White.
- Changing the locks without consent will have the landlord changing his mind about having you as a tenant.
- No alterations without permission — get the landlord’s okay before installing that sweet, sweet Jacuzzi, Deborah Bigelow.
- Even if shit goes down, don’t stop paying your rent. If you stop fulfilling your end of the contract in a fit of frustrated fury you won’t have a leg to stand on when you approach NSW Civil and Administrative Tribunal.

CAPTAIN Q&A

UNSW softball captain Demi Mulder gives blitz the lowdown on the epic annual tradition of Unigames.

What was your first Unigames experience like?

I attended my first Australian University Games last year on the Gold Coast and it was absolutely amazing. We had a wonderful group of people in the softball/basketball team who made the week exceedingly fun.

Why would you recommend Unigames?

Unigames is one of the best opportunities to meet new people. You're thrown together with a bunch of crazy students and the fun doesn't stop for a week. We play during the day and party at night. When we're not on the field or catching a sneaky nap, we cheer on other UNSW teams. The week is memorable and entertaining.

What are the selection criteria for this year's softball team?

If you're gifted with any of the following, you'll make the cut:

- Able to moonwalk
- Monster 600 digit
- Do the crazy eyebrowdance from the Cadbury commercial

Last year, only three of the girls had played previously, so experience is not mandatory. We're looking for people who are fun, energetic and who want to have a go at playing softball.

Why should students choose the softball team over other sports?

Choose softball to make the most of your Unigames experience! Not only do we have fun on the field, but we also have many team activities off field. Even heard of softball/basketball/basketball? Of course not, because no other team in Australia plays it! We also have an added bonus for being with the baseball boys - so you can make 33 new friends in one week. Amazing right?

How can students get in touch with you?

Trials will be held in semester two. For any inquiries please email unigames@unswsoftball.com.au

FESTIVAL...

Lost Picnic
Centennial Park

If you're sick of seeing shaved meats with no shirts on and fanned girls in tiny, tiny ruffled shorts at every festival you go to, Lost Picnic might be right up your alley. With the crazy minds of comedians and musicians, we couldn't help but enjoy their performance of a mix of music, burlesque, and other奇思妙想. The audience wasHooked by the unique atmosphere and the talent of the performers. It was a night filled with laughter, music, and the spirit of picnics.

DVD...

Winter's Tale
Directed by Akira Kurosawa

There's a magical horse, Jessica Findlay Brown (who is too hot to handle) and Will Smith as Lucida, but that's about as good as Winter's Tale gets. I love a good romance as much as the next person (actually, way more) and I'll admit that my eyes watered, but otherwise the film was painfully cliché.

BOOK...

The Casual Vacancy
By J.K. Rowling

The Casual Vacancy, J.K. Rowling's first piece of serious literature after finishing her popular Harry Potter novels, is a more than 2013 after her shockinglyartmental Penn and Robin Thicke collaborations.

ALBUM...

Girls
By Pharrell Williams

Unless you've been living under a rock the size of Pharrell's hat, you would know the happy star has stepped into the spotlight for the first time in 2013 after her shockinglyartmental Penn and Robin Thicke collaborations.

GAME...

South Park: The Stick of Truth
Created By Trey Parker and Matt Stone

Rights-clicking makes your character fart and with that you should have made up your mind about South Park. The Stick of Truth. A more in depth review would be that it's a ludicrous, shocking, and genuinely funny game.

PREMIERE REVIEW - NOAH
Directed by Darren Aronofsky

Several thousand years ago, a darkness crept across the land and a season prepared to strike. A mighty deluge swept upon the people of the Middle East. Wait, what? You mean Noah wasn't a spoof of Loaf of the Bible? Considering the giant rock angels and fantastic landscapes, you could've fooled me.

I went to the cinema expecting a Passable of the Christian story of the Ark. What I witnessed fell like a hybrid between a high budget Hollywood blockbuster and the wild Bible dramas from the Bible that your grandma watches on BBC. Epic in scale, there were certainly moments that dazzle (a montage depicting evolution was particularly breathtaking), but in the whole, the film is just that kind of awkward to watch.

About halfway through Noah (Russel Crowe) turns into an impossible-to-like douche bag who loses his shit and spends about an hour pouting to kill an unimpressive heroine (Emma Watson), we're left with whatever plot was left of that dumb cardboard cutout. One reviewer said it was like watching a movie made by a teenager.
