EDS' LETTER

FROM ANNALISE & OPHELIA

Hey Blitzers,

Oh, have we got an issue in store for you...

We've rounded up some of the biggest names in town for the Sydney Comedy Festival to talk all things stand up ... and sweet Yeezus, our abs are still sore from laughing so hard. We quizzed Noel Fielding about unicorns tears on p.8, heckled Ross Noble on p.9, got dating advice from Greg Behrendt on p.10 and spoke soul patches with Arj Barker on p.11. Be warned... you're guaranteed to laugh too loud if you're reading this on the train home.

We also chatted with outspoken Aussie rapper 360 about everything from drug addiction to his dog. Don't miss it on p.13.

Sheets gonna go down at Toga Party in W8. Prepare for the ultimate Roman bash with p.14, p.17 and p.28. TOGA! TOGA!

CHAIR'S LETTER

FROM BEN HEENAN

Hi all,

Hopefully most people are now over the hump of mid sem assignments. For those who are still going – good luck!

The Board has also had a busy start to the year. We began a review on Arc's strategy, made some decisions on the best way forward for Clubs, considered some issues around election policy and seen a very positive external audit.

Student Director elections are coming up (check our website for full details), so make sure you think about who would serve the best interests of our members and cast your vote accordingly!

Also, we're hoping to have some more regular meetings with student leaders from around campus. This will give us a broader understanding about what's on everyone's mind and relay that information up to the senior people within the Uni if required. So if you ever have a concern about anything related to UNSW (or think something can be done better), just shoot me an email.

Ghada Ali

WROTE RECENTLY IN SCIENCE ON P.25

What do you study?
Media

If you were going on exchange where would you go?
Hogwarts! I'm sure my letter got stuck in the post (or the United States... which ever happens first... please be Hogwarts).

Cleopatra or Caesar?
Caesar. Cleopatra is the reason the bros before (you know the word) code was created.

Which Roman God or Goddess would you party with?
Jupiter! Because you only ever party with the king.

Who is your favourite comedian?
Robin Williams. Rest in peace funny man, you will be missed.

If you were a piece of stationery what would you be?
You know that passive aggressive pencil case you bought from Typo? Yeah, I'm pretty sure I was born from one of those.

What book should every student read?
The Picture of Dorian Grey by Oscar Wilde. Go. Read it. Now. Edumacate yourself little one.

Atul Vidhata

WROTE BLITZ DEBATES ON P.14

What do you study?
Law

If you were going on exchange where would you go?
Okinawa. But exchanging me back would be the trick.

Cleopatra or Caesar?
Caesar!

Which Roman God or Goddess would you party with?
Vulcan, God of the forge, for those inevitable post-party munchies
Me: 'You can make a killer axe but how about a killer sandwich?'
Vulcan: 'Mortal, it's 3am.'

Who is your favourite comedian?
Russell Peters.

If you were a piece of stationery what would you be?
Those little tabs you put in textbooks: 'Look at this! This is so cool! This is important!'

What book should every student read?
Jon Steel's The Perfect Pitch. Fun read to learn how to improve your presentation skills for class or to chat up someone from your tute.

Saira Gugnani

WROTE VOLUNTEERING ON P23

What do you study?
Science/ Law

If you were going on exchange where would you go?
Somewhere in Europe – I'm tossing up between France and Britain.

Cleopatra or Caesar?
Veni, vidi, vici! Caesar it is.

Which Roman God or Goddess would you party with?
Well, Dionysus is the God of festivity (Ed. and wine... oh yeah) so I can sure imagine partying away... But I favour Minerva (Athena), we'd probably get along great!

Who is your favourite comedian?
Rowan Atkinson. There is no one quite like Mr Bean!

If you were a piece of stationery, what would you be?
A metal ruler. Going by elimination, really, because if I were a pen, pencil or eraser I'd get disposed of eventually, and if I was a post-it note I'd be crushed to death in books I don't even like.

What book should every student read?
The Harry Potter series. No explanation necessary.

Sonaal Mediratta

WROTE ARJ BARKER INTERVIEW ON P11

What do you study?
Commerce/Science

If you were going on exchange, where would you go?
Zürich in Switzerland. If anyone would like to fund me, I will repay you with some quality 10 seconds snaps on Snapchat.

Cleopatra or Caesar?
Definitely Caesar. Who doesn't love a military and diplomatic genius who, in his free time, created the all powerful Roman Empire. Also he makes a mean salad.

Which Roman God or Goddess would you party with?
Bacchus, God of wine. We would share a similar 'sophisticated' appreciation for Goon.

Who is your favourite comedian?
I am in love with Jerry Seinfeld. For me, he will forever be the king of observational humour.

If you were a piece of stationery, what would you be?
A highlighter. So I could be the highlight of everyone's day.

What book should every student read?
The play Death of a Salesman by Arthur Miller, get on it.

NOEL FIELDING

FIELDING

BY CHARLOTTE GOODSIR

He's a comedian, artist, actor, co-creator of The Mighty Boosh and a team captain on Never Mind the Buzzcocks. Noel Fielding sat down with Blitz's Charlotte Goodsir for a quick chat before he begins his Sydney Comedy Festival Show, An Evening With Noel Fielding.

How have other comedians impacted your comedic voice? Who were your original inspirations?

Spike Milligan, Monty Python, The Goodies and Barry Humphries – they all influenced me when I was younger. One year I won The Barry Award and I went to tell Barry: “Mate I’ve won your award” and he replied with: “Is there such a thing?” because he didn’t know.

Describe your comedy show?

There is standup, music, animation – I actually take someone from the audience and animate them. My brother is in it, Naboo the Shaman, The Moon (Mighty Boosh) is in it, and his alter ego The Dark Side of the Moon also makes an appearance and I have to explain to the moon who he is because he doesn’t understand.

You also mentored and directed a show for Paul Foot. Will you be seeing his show this year?

Yeah, I will see his show and I think we will be going for afternoon tea. That’s what we do in England. We have cake and sandwiches and tea. High Tea you call it?

Is there anyone else you were hoping to see at the Comedy Festival this year?

Tony Law, he’s great. Sam Simmons as well while I’m down here. Also Greg Fleet I am a big fan of him. James Acaster is really good.

RAPID FIRE

What is the best way to capture unicorn tears?

I drink unicorn tears actually. Recite poetry until they weep and then collect them from their eye with a funnel straight into your mouth.

If you were an elephant would you rather play hopscotch or jump rope?

Hopscotch. Is that the right answer?

What vegetable do you aspire to be?

A courgette (or a zucchini, that’s what you call them here). I like the way they go around town, they are a high status vegetable.

You mean the way they pretend to be a cucumber?

They do, they are like mini cucumbers.

Enjoy more comedy gold at The Comedy Festival Showcase at the Roundhouse on 29 April. Check out facebook.com/UNSWRoundhouse for more info.

ROSS

BY NYASHA NYAKUENGAMA

He's the master of improvised stand up who you might recognise from appearance on Spicks and Specks and Thank God You're Here. Blitz's Nyasha Nyakuengama heckled Geordie funny man, Ross Noble, in the midst of his Aussie tour.

Your stand-up is mostly improvised. Are you ever worried that you'll run out of ideas?

That's like people who worry about dying. There's no point worrying about something until it happens. There's always something [to perform] – the world doesn't stop.

When you're on stage you might have an idea about something and an idea about something else and it's where those two ideas smash together that something else comes in. Or you might have five or six ideas that all intercept with each other. People describe me as surreal but I think that's a bit of a lazy way of describing it.

You've spent a lot of time in Australia. What's your favourite part of this country?

I've got a real soft spot for Melbourne because that's where I've spent most of my time but I absolutely love north of Western Australia. It's an incredible place – thousands of kilometres of just nothing.

Is there anything about the Australian culture that keeps you coming back?

It's an incredibly laid back place. Even the people that are doing it hard seem to be quite chilled about the whole thing. [No worries] should be on the coat of arms really.

How do you go about dealing with hecklers?

You don't fight them. Some new comedians see hecklers as an attack but often it's in a way trying to help. Sometimes it's fun – somebody tries to be aggressive and you could tear them apart easily. It might be the first time that they've tried to be funny in front of a room full of people but what you do is, unless they're just being a dick and annoying people, take what they've said and turn it into something [positive].

Could we give that a go? Could I heckle you? I'll think of something mean.... Oh Ross, get a haircut! Your hair's a bit long!

Well you are right in your assumption that my hair is too long. I'm not going to get a bob but I'm open to a trim. Is VS Sassoon trying to drum up some business? Do you come along to a show where performers have long hair just so you can get a bit of work?

Or I might take it somewhere a bit more bizarre and say something like that [the heckler] creates mousse instead of sperm, he's got mousse balls, and he has to use up all his mousse by the stroke of midnight or his balls will swell and he'll die.

What advice would you give to students wanting to try stand up?

The most important thing is stage presence. With stand up there's no shortcut. It's not like going to a studio and recording an album and bang that's it. You just have to get in front of an audience. That's where you learn.

Just relax and enjoy it because a lot of people are so frightened about doing it that they forget to have fun. Do what you think is funny and not what you think an audience will think is funny.

GREG BEHRENDT

BY SERENA DONG

He appeared on Late Night with Conan O'Brien and Oprah. He wrote for Sex and the City. He toured the world as a rockabilly. He wrote four-plus books, including the #1 New York Times Best Seller He's Just Not Into You. Blitz caught up with the one and only Greg Behrendt.

What can we expect from your show 'I Am The King Sweater' at the Sydney Comedy Festival?

I spent two years from 1985 to 1987 in Japan as a rockabilly star and cosmetics icon (although there are people in the music industry and members of my family who will contest that). That's what the show is about.

As a rock-a-billy at heart, what bands do you like listening to?

Oh god it's so hard to even begin to say! I guess it starts and ends with The Clash.

You studied business but went on to become a comedian. Why the switch?

I just ran out of options and it's the only skill I slightly possess. I never saw it as a skill set or something that I was better than other people at, but I guess I possess the one extra step which is to just go up there and do it into the microphone.

Were your parents on board with your decision?

When I started doing it, they were down with it. They also knew I was a hopeless human being otherwise so they were really happy that I did it.

Are you down with your daughters pursuing comedy?

They might because they are both obsessed with comedy, [but] they are both competitive dancers right now and are both really good at it. And the women in comedy right now are just really crushing it.

What's your life motto?

To continually try new things. [Life] is just about trying a bunch of shit and trying to have as much fun with it as I can, while trying to support my family. My life has been a series of little adventures and that's more important to me than being famous. That stuff is dumb, but the travel, meeting interesting people, and getting to wear a pink suit – that stuff is exciting.

As an author/love consultant, what dating advice would you give to students?

I would just say you're young and you're gonna f*** it up so don't worry about it. No matter what happens, it's not the end of the world. There will always be another. If you just hang in there it will be over in the blink of an eye and you will look back on it and laugh, I promise you. Start a band, write a book, join the bowling team, do anything but don't kill yourself over it because he's not that important, she's not that important. From great, great pain comes great, great [knowledge]. Use it.

ARJ BARKER

BY SONAAL MEDIRATTA

Blitz's Sonaal Mediratta chatted to Arj Barker, the always-funny stand-up comedian and Roundhouse alumni. In the midst of his current tour down under, we asked Arj about everything from future projects to soul patches.

When did you realise comedy and performing was your calling?

I think from the first time I was on stage I had so much fun, that I was instantly, completely addicted.

If you could study any degree at UNSW what would it be?

No question, it would be music production. I'm setting up a home studio. I want to learn how to make electronic music and I'm going to be launching a podcast soon.

What kind of podcast do you want to make?

It's just going to be subjects that interest me. One week it might be about UFOs, next week it might be about quantum physics or artificial intelligence or a whole episode on farts and get a fart expert in.

What keeps you coming back to Australia?

It is the amazing reception I get here;

the warmth of the people in the audiences. I really feel like this is my audience out here more so than in my own country.

What was young Arj's most awkward dating experience?

I was in my early twenties and the date had gone well. The girl was really cute. I was saying goodnight. I smoked back then and I pulled out my pack of cigarettes to offer her one and I had unwittingly gripped a condom between the cigarette pack and my finger and it was just in plain view. It was just like: 'ugh, okay, I guess I'll never see you again, bye.'

What would you say to people considering to grow a soul patch?

I'd say go for it! I've held onto mine through thick and thin, in style and out of style.

What is your biggest pet peeve about young people?

That I'm not one of them. I still feel young. I have to remind myself that I'm not in my twenties anymore.

What's your biggest advice for University students right now?

Come see my show. No, please fix the world because it's f****. Also have fun because one day you'll look back and go shit, I wish I was still in Uni.

You've performed at UNSW before.

What do you hope for your next performance at the Roundhouse?

When I think of the Roundhouse, I always think of a 'roundhouse kick' and I'm always disappointed at the lack of martial arts when I visit. But it's always fun. I like to bring a mix-match of material and really just bust it open and have a good time.

RAPID FIRE

Favourite Aussie word or saying?

360

It's hard to think of a rapper who has created as much of a stir in the Aussie music scene as 360. Surrounded by controversy, 360 has become iconic for his narrative rap, strong Australian accent and eagerness to speak his mind.

Blitz's Eden Gillespie caught up with 360 in the midst of his Australia-wide Retopia tour and chatted about everything from his drug recovery to his dog, Dr. Pepper.

What was your main inspiration behind your newest album Utopia?

I really wanted to talk about everything that was going on in my life. It was a very personal album and quite honest. I went through the process of getting sober, dealing with a lot of mental illness, like anxiety and depression. For me personally I know that when I write about this stuff it really helps, it's quite therapeutic.

Do you have any tricks before a show that you use to pump yourself up?

Before I was sober, I used to drink a lot. Now I don't really have any rituals but, probably about an hour before shows, I pace back and forth – I look like a psychopath. I get all pumped up like I'm going to go and punch-on or some shit.

What advice would you give to students wishing to pursue a music career?

I think it's something you know you want to do for your whole life – it can't just be a part-time hobby.

That's the most important thing – that you know you're passionate about it and you know you want to do it everyday. It has to be everything to you, you know?

What about your favourite tattoo?

My grandfather's initials H.S.N on my wrist. It's not like a crazy, wild tattoo or anything but it probably means the most to me because I really miss my grandpa. I loved him a lot.

What is your least favourite tattoo?

The Ninja Turtle I have on my right arm. I love Rafael from The Ninja Turtles, but it's a shocking tattoo, the guy who did it was off his face.

Who do you dream about collaborating with?

I would like to work with Kayne, that would be amazing. He's so forward-thinking. He is always evolving and changing his shit – I love how he makes music.

Weirdest fact about yourself?

That's a hard question. I have an eye disease called Keratoconus and I'm half-blind and I have had a cornea transplant. I don't know if that's weird but that's something different. . .

You post a lot on Facebook about your dog. Tell us about her.

Her name is Dr. Pepper. She's the funniest little dog. She has a massive personality. I miss her a lot on tour but I also miss my family. She's a staffy, we adopted her from a shelter so she's been abused, she's a real scaredy-cat if she hears any loud noises and shit, but she's still really cool.

YES

SAYS ALEX ANASTASSIOU

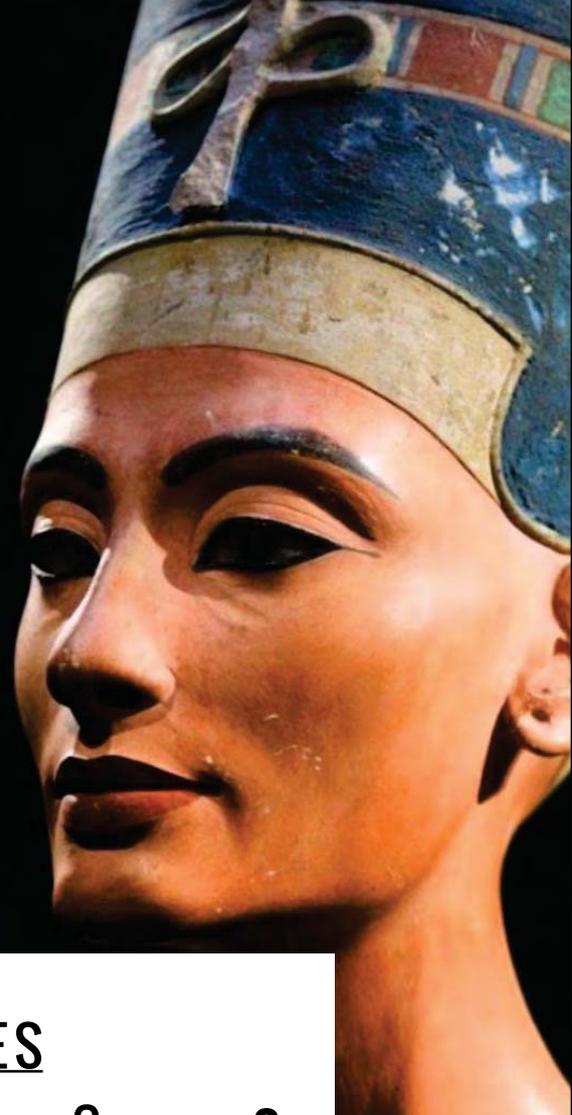

Clearly we recognise that getting a nod to your legacy in a Katy Perry video will always be worth more than having a salad with stale bits of bread named after you, but that is definitely not the only reason this leading lady is better than our favourite backstabbed Roman.

Let us start with a nice neat cultural punch to the opposition's face as to just how much better Cleo is than Mr Look-At-Me-I-Don't-Play-Well-With-Others. First, the incomparable Ms Elizabeth Taylor (a woman who had as many husbands as Cleo) played our favourite Egyptian queen on the screen.

Cleopatra was a woman so badass she inherited the throne but still managed to get people to like her, unlike her overexcited baby-daddy Caesar (it's okay girl, we all have flings that we regret), who took over leadership and single-handedly brought about the demise of the Roman Empire (nice one, Julius). A woman who was so confident, that it is said when Antony first saw her, he 'plunged into a love affair with Cleopatra', well holla if you have a Notebook-worthy love affair, Julius? I think not.

Though not the first, Cleo is credited as being perhaps the most famous of the female pharaohs of Egypt, more than holding her own in the male-dominated pages of history. With historians suggesting that she was not only very beautiful, but also witty, charming and let's face it: gave modern women one hell of a case of #inspo when it comes to doing our eyeliner.

Thanks for the soggy lettuce and stale bread Julius, but we know that Cleo is the clear winner here.

BLITZ DEBATES

Is Cleopatra better than Caesar?

Dress up as Cleopatra or Caesar at the Roundhouse Toga party on 30 April. Find out more at facebook.com/UNSWRoundhouse

NO

SAYS ATUL VIDHATA

This is a debate? The guy who conquered half the known world or the Ancient Egyptian Kim Kardashian? Here's a hint: it's easy to be remembered for looking pretty but if that's all you're known for, it's pretty sad.

Caesar might not have had looks but he had game. He owned Rome like cat videos own the internet. He convinced an almost modern democracy that they'd be better off with him as absolute ruler... three times. Today this might not seem important but it's the same as convincing your lecturer that you don't need to sit the exam because you should be teaching the course. Cleopatra's power strategy was about getting someone to put a ring on it.

When he was 22, Caesar was kidnapped by pirates. Not only did he persuade them to let him join the crew while waiting for his ransom, he demanded they increase it and took a cut. When she was 22, Cleopatra had herself delivered to Caesar inside a carpet. Reasons like this are why a month is named after him but there's no Cleopatuary (Ed. For those wondering it's the month of July after Julius).

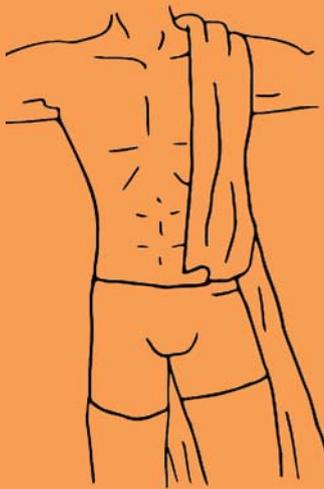

If Cleopatra and Caesar were on Tinder, the hot Egyptian queen's selfie filled profile might get more swipes right but Caesar's legendary oral skills would get dates. His life is why his name stands for more than just a salad; his legend is why Caesar is a title of kings.

1. SELECT A SHEET

Any hot-blooded university student knows that the best and cheapest party togas come from the comfiest sheets, so dig out that one sheet you haven't spilled coffee or any exam-comfort food on and drape one end over your left shoulder with the long end behind you..

2. WRAP LIKE YEEZY

Wrap the long end across your back, under your right arm and across your chest. Toss the long end over your left shoulder, adjust the height and you're almost Roman ready.

3. KNOW YOUR KNOTS

Secure your toga. While you don't necessarily need to have the knot-tying skills of a scout leader, a basic level of skill is required so that you don't have a wardrobe malfunction. Pins are a better option to secure this bad boy, but beware no one's prepared to see you practice amateur acupuncture techniques on the dancefloor if they come undone.

4. ACCESSORISE

You've successful wrapped yourself in a sheet but you're not quite ready to step out in public. Accessories are crucial. Pull out those gladiator sandals and don't forget the laurel wreath. If you're feeling particularly creative/Ke$ha-esque be sure to pile on the gold glitter.

Toga Party

BY SAIRA GUGNANI

Forget the Colosseum, the Roundhouse is the real amphitheatre at the centre of all the Roman action. And who can say no to cheap travel to Rome and back in one night.

Strip your mattress, knot, twist and pin your sheets, drop your flower crown and let your inner god/goddess reign.

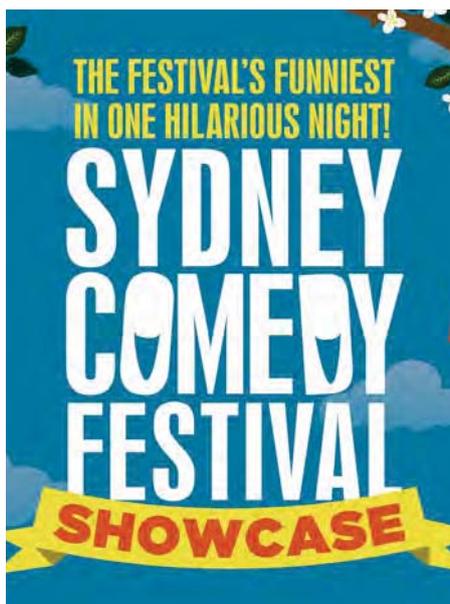

Don't know how to tie a toga? We've done all the research for you, check out p12 and p15 for everything you need to know on wearing a bed sheet in public.

Whether you're born to lead the Roman Empire, have a penchant for ancient Greece or chariot racing is your thing, grab your mates, and get down to the Roundhouse.

What's On Sydney: ANZAC Day

BY CASSIDY RITTER

ANZAC Day this year marks the 100th anniversary of the landings at Gallipoli. There are a range of events around Sydney, should you wish to remember our fallen soldiers.

Commemorate by sleeping under the stars in Centennial Park on 24 April. The night includes camping in authentic swags, big screen showings of historic films and documentaries, food and live entertainment. Find out more at campgallipoli.com.au/sydney.

If camping out isn't your thing, rise bright and early and attend the Dawn Service on the 25 April at The Cenotaph in Martin Place. Follow this with the ANZAC Day March in Sydney CBD. Then after the parade, there will be a Commemoration Service at the War Memorial in South Hyde Park.

If you prefer sunset to sunrise you can attend the ANZAC Day Sunset Service Ceremony at The Cenotaph in Martin Place at 5pm. The NSW Ambulance Service Band will accompany this service followed by the lowering of the flags.

Or grab some mates and head to the local for a beer and a game of Two-up.

Seek out events and participate in remembering the fallen that helped build our country. ANZAC Day is for everyone to get involved.

Volunteer Spotlight

Ryan

Volunteering at the Stationery Reuse Centre in three words.

Recycle, free, shopping.

If you could be any piece of stationery what would you be?

A magazine holder – they seem to be the most expensive.

Best remedy for a paper cut?

Use a Band Aid probably, or leave it.

Vania

Volunteering at the Stationery Reuse Centre in three words.

Awesome, reuse, sustainable.

If you could be any piece of stationery what would you be?

Pens- everyone needs pens

Best remedy for a paper cut?

Just leave it? I don't do much, maybe suck it?

Blitz indulged its stationery fetish and interviewed Erin Bailey, the student coordinator of the Stationery Reuse Centre, about free stationery on campus.

Let's get this straight – is there really free stationery on campus or is it just a cruel urban myth?

Yep, it might sound too good to be true, but the Stationery Reuse Centre really does exist and it really gives free stationery to students!

Where are you guys located and when are you open?

We're located in middle campus at QUAD1001A, right across from the Arc Offices, just off the Basser Steps, and we're open 10am-4pm weekdays during semester.

What's an average day in the life of a volunteer?

Volunteers are generally involved in running the Stationery Reuse Centre – so that could involve helping UNSW staff and students find the stationery they're looking for, liaising with external companies to source new stationery, or stocking the donations we received from companies all over Sydney. Volunteers might also help with everything from running events, or creating fun publicity strategies.

What skills do volunteers gain from the Stationery Re-use Centre?

Volunteers are able to develop their communication, organisation, customer service and teamwork skills, as well as having the chance to gain skills in areas like data management, creativity, external relations and event management.

Why is it important to have a service like the Stationery Re-use Centre at UNSW?

It helps lift the economic burden that students and other UNSW community members face, by providing essential uni life items such as pens, papers and folders for free. It also has a really positive environmental impact by providing a service for companies and offices to give their unwanted stationery items a second life. It promotes values of recycling and helps to prevent creating unnecessary landfill.

What is your favourite thing about volunteering here?

I love that I'm contributing to a program that has a positive impact on society, both in the immediate university sense, and in a larger global sense. I also really enjoy how many new people I get to meet and make friends with!

Other than the inevitable temptation of free stationery and the self-control required to resist, what is the most challenging part of your role as volunteer?

While that is a struggle, the most challenging part for me is probably carrying and putting away all the boxes of stationery we get! I'm really weak. Otherwise it's a pretty fun and relaxed time.

How do you pass the time when it's quiet?

Often we spend the time putting away new stationery or tidying up the Centre, but when I get the chance I really like to make some fun and crafty decorations – it's actually a really fun way to chill out and forget about the stress of my readings and assignments!

Penis transplants are a thing now

Dangerous leukaemia cells made not so dangerous

Scientists from Stanford University have discovered that it is possible to force leukaemia cells to mature into a kind of immune cell that may help clear the body of tumour cells. This was discovered when scientists were trying to keep leukaemia cells alive in a culture plate.

Homeopathy has been disproven

Homeopathy, an alternative form of medicine (you can Google it in detail), has been proven to not work. Like, not at all. After 225 controlled studies and 1800 research papers, scientists have confirmed that it does not help ANYTHING.

Breathometer, $49.99

This simple device plugs into the headphone jack on your smartphone. Once blown into, the app will tell you your blood alcohol concentration reading. Be careful though, this may be fun with mates but test results are not accurate enough yet to be taken as proof of driver safety.

Solargopack Solar Powered Backpack, $139.95

Never bring those pesky charging cables to uni again. Solargopack's Solar Powered Backpack is a waterproof bag with removable solar panels to charge all your mobile devices. The powerful 12,000 mAh battery comes ready with most popular adapters. Ditch finding a room with a power point at lunch and relax on the lawn in the sun while your devices charge.

Google Chromecast, $49

Turn your ordinary TV into an incredible video streaming device, and use your smartphone, tablet or laptop as the remote. Streaming videos and music on your regular device is old news – now you can stream straight from YouTube, Plex, Vivo and Netflix onto your TV. You can be utilizing your procrastination time with Google Chromecast. Thank me later.

Blitz interviewed UNSW Art Theory student Carla Jamieson, a tea enthusiast and creator of super realist drawings of the human body.

When was the first moment you realised you could draw like a pro?

In kindergarten, being asked by classmates to help them colour in and complete their art homework.

How do you keep inspired when you have to do art every day?

Studying the works of other artists and the old masters keeps me eternally inspired. Also, reading art books - at the moment I'm halfway through Scott Bevan's The Life of William Dobell and Françoise Gilot's Life With Picasso. I am really an art theorist at heart, not an artist.

What has been your favourite piece you've produced?

A diptych containing sleeping portraits of my grandmother and the young son of a family friend in pencil (Ed. a diptych is two separate images composed as a pair), for its sentimental value and the sincere human responses I received from those who saw it.

What has been the highlight of your artistic journey so far?

Every breakthrough moment in drawing is just as wonderful as the next. The enthralling high one experiences when the work begins to flow intuitively and all elements come together is unlike anything else. These landmarks no matter how small, are turning points in the artistic journey and some of the best moments in my memory.

Are you more of a hunter or a gatherer?

Definitely a gatherer. I'm a self-confessed hoarder, like a squirrel.

If you could go back in time where would you go?

Back to 60 BC, in the age of the First Triumvirate in Rome, to understand what it felt like to live under their turbulent politics, or 1860s Europe, or the Jazz Age - you didn't say I had to choose ONE place!

Top three artists you would like to be compared too?

Goya for his humanity, and Tracey Emin and Egon Schiele for their intimacy. I have a soft spot for the old master painters. I'm mainly concerned with provocative or controversial artists - this can speak a lot about humanity and culture.

For those of us with a limited sense of aesthetics how can we dress like a hipster artist?

Be comfy. Slides and socks everyday.

RAPID FIRE

Stone-wash or tie dye?
Stone-wash.

If your artworks were an alcoholic beverage what would it be?
Gin.

Shoot, Shag or Marry: Beyoncé, Kimmy K and Emma Watson
Shag both Beyonce & Kimmy K and marry Emma Watson, shoot none. Does that count?

Do you believe in ghosts?
Maybe spirits, not ghosts.

Are you a talented student artist who would love some exposure? Let us know at blitzeditor@arc.unsw.edu.au.

Blitz caught up with Nick McGann to discuss his time on exchange at the University of Alberta in Edmonton, Canada.

What made you decide to go on exchange?

I'd spoken to so many people who had done it and had a good time. I never really thought I would go on exchange but it seemed a good way to tie in travelling whilst studying, and before starting a full time job.

What kind of extra-curricular activities did you get involved in?

I joined the Outdoors Club and the Ski Club. The Outdoors Club did a weekend in Jasper National Park in the Rocky Mountains, and the Ski Club took us to Marmot Basin Ski Resort. I joined the Law Society ice hockey team, bought some ice skates and did a lot of skating at the uni ice rink. I also dabbled in a curling lesson, which was pretty fun! It's just lawn bowls on ice.

Where else did you travel?

At the end of the semester I spent six weeks travelling around the USA. I started in Utah where I went skiing for a week, then to Washington DC, New York, New Orleans, Austin, Las Vegas, San Francisco, and then LA.

Did you have any disasters?

The only hiccup was when I went on a rugby tournament in Calgary. I had a good time until I managed to break my hand in two places. That made uni pretty difficult for the last five weeks, including writing exams. Even worse, I couldn't pick up weights in the gym - which was devastating. All hopes for a Canadian winter bulk were destroyed.

What was the weirdest food you ate?

I wish we had eaten the alligator in New Orleans so I could say that! The weirdest drink was definitely a 'vodka Caesar' - it's got 'clamato juice' (half clam juice, half tomato juice). I don't know the exact ingredients but Google it - it's gross.

What's the best and worst thing about living overseas?

The best part is that you really immerse yourself in a different country as opposed to just visiting and getting a taste of it. The worst part is missing people back home and getting your head around the fact that it's not a holiday... You do have to do uni work at some stage.

Any advice for students going on exchange to Canada?

Whatever you do, stay away from the 'cult' dodgeball society in Edmonton. They're so obsessed, it really freaked me out. Definitely do not get involved in that, and if you do, please don't purchase helmets, knee or elbow pads unless you have a legitimate medical reason for wearing them.

RAPID FIRE

Best meal in the country?

The ribs and chicken combo at Earl's Restaurants.

Bacon and eggs or bacon and waffles?

Bacon and eggs.

One Canadian thing that makes you irrationally angry?

Tipping and taxes at restaurants

Fiona

FINE ARTS/ARTS

You're wearing:

Topshop socks and Storeroom Vintage dress. I bought the boots in Paris a couple of years ago. My necklace, the stone is from the market in Laos.

You in three words:

I don't know... Can those be my three words? I guess creative, honest and um... indecisive?

Your most treasured possession:

Cameras (plural).

Your fashion inspiration:

Just travelling everywhere. Seeing different people everywhere.

Manish

MEDICAL SCIENCE

You're wearing:

Steve Janoski Air Max shoes, Stussy shirt and Nike gym bag (I love Nike). There were ads on Facebook for a site called Bronze Snake which is where I got these pants.

You in three words:

Dress to impress.

Your most treasured possession:

Probably my car, yeah.

Your fashion inspiration:

Not anyone in particular. Everyone has a different style. I just like to wear different brands and dressing nice to be honest.

Sam

COMMERCE

You're wearing:

Preen by Thornton Bregazzi sunnies, Pull & Bear bag and Converse All Stars. I like to op shop so this shirt's from Glebe Markets and these shorts are from Bondi Market.

You in three words:

Adventurous, friendly and hardworking.

Your most treasured possession:

My sunnies, which I scratched the other day. They were face down in my bag all day.

Your fashion inspiration:

Alexandra Spencer (@4thandBleeker) and Margaret Zhang (@margaret_zhang).

Mac

MEDIA/INTERNATIONAL STUDIES

You're wearing:

Vinnies shirt, Converse All Stars and Bronze Snake shorts. My bag, actually my Mum gave me this, it's a Ted Baker bag. I've got a few rings – one's from Mexico, one's from Turkey and one's from Peru.

You in three words:

Oh God, okay... passionate, I'd say. Adventurous. And I think happy?

Your most treasured possession:

My bed. I love my bed.

Your fashion inspiration:

Just the whole casual surf scene – I live in Manly. A little bit grungy but not really. Nothing fancy or too expensive.

FILM

The Theory of Everything

Directed by James Marsh

BY YAEL BRENDER

If you really want to understand life, read A Brief History of Time and make sure you have a dictionary and someone smarter than you by your side. But if you want to understand Steven Hawking, look no further than The Theory of Everything. Hawking wasn't always in a wheelchair, his voice wasn't always synthetic, and it is precisely this humanity that brings warmth to the otherwise tragic story of the brilliant man, brought down in his prime by ALS.

The Theory of Everything asks the age-old question: how far would you go for the person you love? There's no fairy tale answer in this story – Jane (Felicity Jones) becomes Hawking's wife and fulltime caregiver. In life, Jane stands in her husband's immense shadow, but in the film a long-overdue light is shone on her predicament.

The film positively sparkles with passion. Eddie Redmayne, who won the Academy Award for Best Actor for this role, is as talented as he is delicious. The beautiful Felicity Jones is terrific in a role that seemed tailor-made for her. The film's greatest strength is that it leaves the humdrum topics of quantum mechanics, general relativity and black hole radiation alone, because Hawking's vivid physical and emotional torture is infinitely more interesting.

BOOK

Miss Peregrine's Home For Peculiar Children

Written by Ransom Riggs

BY ONG LIH TYNG

What happens when you combine fantasy writing with Ransom Rigg's fascination towards vintage photographs of peculiar children? You get a mysterious, incredibly eerie and wonderful book that is Miss Peregrine's Home For Peculiar Children.

Don't let the title fool you. This book is not for children although it reveals the kinds of adventures our inner child would love to have. The plot follows 16-year-old Jacob Portman's journey to resolve unanswered questions after his Grandpa's death. He time travels through secret bogs, treads around abandoned ruins, and manages to meet the best and worst people he could ever imagine.

Riggs has a flair for drawing out the most vivid imagery through words. It's the kind of book you won't want to stop reading because it's too spellbinding; never mind that it's 2am and you have assignments due the day after. It's also the kind of book that will make you slightly afraid to turn the next page because it contains a haunting collection of vintage photographs of children that he includes randomly and without warning. Still, it's worth a read and something tells me it will persuade you to watch the movie adaptation coming out in 2016.

ALBUM

Gracetown

San Cisco

BY MICHAEL KING

Has it already been three years since we were humming along to Awkward? You know that catchy tune with that simple guitar riff, cute lyrics about a slightly creepy stalker? Well... yes!

San Cisco are back with their sophomore album Gracetown. Let's be honest, a lot may have changed for most of the general public since then but nothing has for San Cisco. Gracetown picks up where their first LP left off and gives us another 12 tunes to keep our summer going throughout the year.

One could of course argue that it's too simple, too naïve, too... San Cisco really! The sophomore album of a band is often regarded as a turning point or a time for potential innovation, but San Cisco don't need that. Every track gives me that same feel good vibe and that's all I want.

Whether it be the single Run that triple j will be playing on repeat, the slow-tempo Magic, the killer base line in Wash It All Away, the melancholic Mistakes or the killer lyrics of Skool, San Cisco are back and I'm loving it!

TV .....

Netflix

Streaming Media Company

BY ALEX ANASTASSIOU

Now unless you've been living under a Wifi-less rock for the past few months (I don't judge, rent is expensive), you've heard about US media streaming site Netflix arriving on our shores... Netflix is finally here!

Unfortunately, the range on offer to Australian customers is nowhere near as appealing as the library that is available to the US but for under $10 a month for the base package, how could you not? Hellooo House of Cards Season 3. While I admit finally getting Netflix felt more like a fizzle than a bang, I won't pretend that I haven't spent every spare second watching everything from Netflix comedy specials to all the Disney movies in their library (not sorry).

The offer of a relatively cheap streaming service is super tempting to take up, but do your research kids, a nice and neat 3 season binge of your favourite TV show (if they have it, that is), will definitely chew into your Internet usage – so consider bringing your headphones to uni and holding your own screening in the library.

Disclaimer: I do not take responsibility for your grades dropping because you watch so much Netflix you forget what sunlight feels like.

GAME .....

Hand of Fate

Developed by Defiant Development

BY NICHOLAS VARDANECA

Defiant Development, a studio braving the barren wasteland that is the Australian video game industry, recently released their latest crowd funded game, Hand of Fate on PC, PlayStation 4 and Xbox One.

Hand of Fate is an intriguing mix of a tabletop style game combined with roguelike elements. The player moves along a randomly generated board of cards, attempting to reach the final boss of the 'dungeon'. Each card presents an event to the player, which they overcome through decisions, combat, or just plain luck. If the player is successful they're rewarded with equipment, food or gold. Failure may lead to curses, loss of health, or patronising remarks from the game's sketchy (but oddly charming) 'dealer'.

Unlike many roguelike games, which determine the player's encounters by random chance, Hand of Fate has a unique deck-building feature. Before each game, you can choose what encounters and equipment will appear based on what cards you've unlocked.

Quality voice-acting, suspenseful tone and pacing, and a unique and engaging concept are dragged down by stale combat that plays akin to a never-ending quicktime event. If you can look past that, you'll find a game that is still more than worthy of trying out.

FESTIVAL .....

Jessie J

Big Top Sydney

BY SARAH SCHOFIELD

From the moment the lights went down in the Big Top at Luna Park, you could tell that this was going to be one hell of a party. With a good mix of new and old, Jessie J wowed the crowd with her incredible voice – I'm 99% sure that the microphone was totally unnecessary.

Some of the best parts were between songs when she stopped to chat. It gave the crowd a chance to find out what the English singer is really like, and she didn't disappoint. But, of course, that's not the priority here.

Price Tag, Loud, and Do It Like A Dude were pretty much enough to blow the roof off. After an hour and a half of dancing and singing at the top of our lungs, Bang Bang (with everyone told to imitate Jessie, Ariana Grande or Nicki Minaj) was the perfect way to finish, even if it did mean we all lost our voices. Totally worth it. This concert was high energy fun (minus the exercise).

UNSW EATS

Directions

1. Heat the olive oil in a small oven-proof pan on medium heat, add the chopped onion, pepper bell and anchovies - let sizzle for about 5 minutes.
2. Add the chopped tomatoes, sardines, black olives, capers, parsley and salt and pepper to taste and let the mixture simmer for approximately 15 minutes.
3. Using a wooden spoon and by pushing the tomato mixture to the side, create two little holes in the mixture and crack an egg into each of the holes.
4. Wait for the bottom of the eggs to set, crumble the feta cheese on top and then place the pan into the oven (180°C, fan-forced, no need to preheat).
5. Bake for about 7 minutes or until the eggs are cooked through.
6. Serve with bread or by itself along some greens.

Going commando under your toga, yes or no?

Wear something under your toga! I don't know why you wouldn't wear anything!

What would you sell at the UNSW flea market?

Well, I love jewellery, especially earrings.

Caesar or Cleopatra?

I had enough of Caesar in high school, so Cleopatra, because she's not Caesar.
