

ALESSANDRO CIUFFETELLI

Ciao, my name is Alessandro! I am a fourth-year civil engineering and commerce student. As a Canberra boy, Sydney was a scary change – everything was bigger, better, and faster. Although I came alone, I found an incredible community in UNSW – it has been my home.

My student leadership journey has taught me that creating communities is tremendously important. They provide opportunities to meet and learn from like-minded people and develop a connection with something bigger - something big enough to evoke change!

Intimate communities flourish at UNSW – colleges, collectives, volunteer groups, each with their own unique offerings. These communities are underpinned and united by Arc, whose compelling vision is reinforced by a talented and hard-working team.

As an Arc Board Director, I would strive to advocate for students, with your input and support and implement innovative strategic frameworks for the UNSW culture and our community to grow and thrive!
